BAKER CRANE TRUCK speeds handling of crated motor cars

Terminal Stevedoring Co. moves 18 crates from lighter to pier bulkhead in one hour*

Crates weigh over 3 tons each.*

A fleet of Baker Trucks has helped the Terminal Stevedoring Co. on the New York waterfront do away with horse-and-buggy methods of material handling. Extremely large cases of machinery, motor cars and other manufactured products, newsprint rolls, paper pulp, etc., are moved from shipside to pier storage or aboard ship in the quickest possible time at the lowest cost. The use of Baker Trucks has reduced handling costs 18% to 20% per ton — in addition to cutting time to the minimum.

Baker Material Handling Engineers know how to cut to a minimum the time and costs of loading, unloading and storing. They are at your service.

ARE YOU HOARDING any 3-Month-Old Stock?

SELL TO GRAINGER OR TELL WPB

Make your surplus stock available to the war effort immediately and effectively. WPB is cooperating with manufacturers and others who are voluntarily liquidating their surplus. W. W. Grainger Inc. has purchased and redistributed thousands of dollars of frozen surplus located on their own initiative and in cooperation with WPB. When you sell to Grainger, your surplus stock is speedily redistributed by a nation-wide merchandising organization constantly working with war plants

MOTORS IN STOCK

DEFENSE PLANTS and priority buyers are saving precious time on motor deliveries by ordering from motor stock lists in the W. W. Grainger Motor Book. Immediate delivery can be made on many sizes, types and brands of motors. Write for latest copy.

LIQUIDATE SURPLUS STOCK and You Liquidate the 4th Foe

3-month old inventory in your stockroom is a 4th FOE fighting our armed forces. You can speed the war effort by liquidating all your surplus stock so that it can be redistributed to producers of war materials.

Over a billion dollars worth of vital surplus mechanical and electrical items is being withheld from war production.

Scrap, rubber and aluminum salvage has played a big part in speeding up war production while liquidation of other surplus inventories has lagged shamefully.

CRITICALLY NEEDED are Such Electrical and Mechanical Items, As—

Electric Motors	Switches	Cord-Sets	Gear Reducers	Fan Parts
Electric Tools	Rheostats	Bearings	Gas Engines	Ventilators
Machinery	Pulleys	Couplings	Compressors	Heating Equipt.
Grinders	V-Belts	Power Drills	Pumps	Heating Elements
Paint Sprayers	Gauges	Shafting	Blowers	Heat Controls
Controllers	Meters	Pillow Blocks	Fans, All Types	Sub-Assemblies

GRAINGER WILL BUY Your Surplus and Get It Into the War Effort

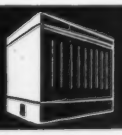

We will pay highest prices permitted by OPA for your surplus stock inventory of items listed above. Take advantage of this opportunity—turn frozen, dormant stocks into cash—convert idle space into productive space—help reduce serious war shortages.

SEND US YOUR SURPLUS INVENTORY NOW

We invite all firms to send us their surplus inventory list. It will be quickly reviewed and quoted on. Our representative will call if you prefer.

Through the "Tidewater Method" of Field Warehousing

Under today's storage problems, and with today's financing needs, the soundest plan of assistance for many manufacturers, distributors, and processors is to "bring the warehouse to the goods."

The "Tidewater Method" gives you warehouse receipts for inventories of raw materials or finished goods against which you can borrow from your local bank, at low secured loan rates—without expensive shipping, storage, or handling costs.

The "Tidewater Method" covers everything — storage, bonding, custodianship, withdrawals, and records.

For complete details — and the advantages of field warehousing, write us at once.

WOULD HAVE

IF HITLER had stuck to paper-hanging and the Japs had minded their own business, this Truck-Trailer would have had some other type of body and would today be carrying grapefruit or auto parts or milk or shoes . . something to make life richer and better for every American family.

But . . today it's a Field Staff Office for our Air Forces. Headquarters on wheels.

A vast majority of the Trailers that have in recent months come from the assembly lines of the seven Fruehauf plants, and from the factories of other manufacturers, too, have been needed by the various branches of the United Nations armed forces . . for a wide variety of uses. That's why, of course, relatively few Trailers are today available for non-military uses.

Fruehauf Trailers of varied types had already proved their wide range of usefulness in more than 100 lines of business . . but the way they fit into war work has dramatically emphasized their versatility. Many of the special body types shown here have several military applications besides the one indicated. Still many other types are serving the armed forces in a wider range of essential work. Most of these tasks couldn't be handled by any other method.

And still further uses are being developed with gratifying frequency . . all looking toward a victorious day when life will again be richer and better for people everywhere.

Yes . . Truck-Trailers have really enlisted.

Electric Protection Services

FIRE • BURGLARY • INTRUSION • HOLDUP • SABOTAGE

American District Telegraph Company (A.D.T. System) is the only nation-wide organization specializing in electric protection services. A.D.T. manufactures and installs electrical protection systems to safeguard lives and property against the hazards of fire and unlawful intrusion. Systems also are provided for the supervision of watchmen and guards and of certain industrial processes. The protection equipment within each customer's premises is connected with an A.D.T. Central Station where skilled attendants stand constant vigil and respond to alarms by dispatching armed and bonded private guards, the police, the fire department, or by initiating whatever other action may be required by the nature of the emergency. In localities where Central Station service is not available, the protection system usually may be connected to the local police or fire department.

FIRE PROTECTION SERVICE

• Sprinkler Supervisory and Waterflow Alarm: Automatically detects and reports trouble conditions (whether caused maliciously or otherwise) that might impair the sprinkler's effectiveness. Automatically summons the fire department the instant a sprinkler head opens or in case of a serious leak.

• Aero Automatic Fire Alarm: (For unsprinklered areas, or in conjunction with sprinklers.) Automatically detects fire when it starts, and automatically summons the fire department.

• Manual Fire Alarm: Available in various types—for summoning the fire department, for sounding local alarms to warn occupants, or performing both functions.

• Automatic Fire Control for Air Duct Systems: Provides automatic fire and smoke detecting and reporting devices for air conditioning, ventilating and other air duct systems. Automatically closes dampers, stops fans, etc., and summons the fire department.

INTRUSION DETECTION SYSTEMS

• Burglar Alarm: Protection for doors, windows, skylights, etc., by means of electrified screens, foils and similar devices.

• Holdup Alarm: Provides means for transmitting a silent signal to summon police in case of holdup or other emergency.

• Invisible Ray Alarm (Photoelectric): Projects beams of invisible light across indoor or outdoor areas. Interruption of beam by any person or vehicle results in an alarm.

• Telapproach: Establishes an electronic field and produces alarm upon approach of any person into the electrical field.

• Phonetalarm: A sound detection system especially adaptable for protection of vaults containing valuables such as specie, securities, confidential plans and documents, narcotics, gauges, tools, etc.

• Emergency Police Call: Provides means for summoning police direct to premises in case of emergency.

PATROL SUPERVISION FOR WATCHMEN AND GUARDS

• Central Station Watchman's Reporting Service: Provides signaling stations electrically connected to the A.D.T. Central Station to which the watchman reports at prearranged intervals. Failure to signal is immediately investigated.

OTHER A.D.T. SYSTEMS

• Heating System Supervision: Electrically supervises temperature, flame failure, oil supply, vacuum, pressure, humidity, current supply, pilot safety, automatic stoker. For coal, gas or oil fired systems.

• Industrial Process Supervision: Electrically supervises temperature, humidity, power, water supply, etc., in various industrial processes such as mixing, cooking, drying, cold storage, etc.

The benefits derived from A.D.T. Protection are far-reaching....May we tell you how it can benefit you? Write our Executive Offices, 155 Sixth Avenue, New York, N.Y., for free descriptive booklets.

"Congratulations on Jumbo Jrs' ability to withstand terrific punishment"

No greater proof of the ability of General Jumbo Jr. industrial pneumatic tires to stand up and perform in any kind of service can be found than in the following letter from Ralph H. Swaisgood, President, Pacific Engineering Corp., Los Angeles:

"One of our Aerostands was recently towed behind a car from Los Angeles to Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. The Jumbo Jrs. used were 16" and turned over better than 3,000,000 revolutions at high speed during the road test. Terrific heat was encountered, especially across the desert.

"Since the Aerostand has no spring arrangement, the entire shock had to be absorbed by the Jumbo Jrs., and believe us some of those roads were rough.

"Our Aerostand was designed to be towed behind Army equipment over any terrain . . . so you see General Industrial Tires get the tough jobs. Congratulations on their ability to withstand terrific punishment."

Available in new Air Corps specification sizes. Also for war orders and for certain essential uses.

Tires 8" to 24" overall diameter. Load capacity 100 lbs. to 1500 lbs. per tire. 2-4-6- and 8-ply with seperate tubes and heavy-duty wheels. Exclusive and patented, the design of the Jumbo Jr. makes possible a type of high speed or low speed application equalled by no other industrial pneumatic.

"--And Pass the Ammunition!"

Here is one of the war-time jobs we are doing—helping to "pass the ammunition", helping by means of producing in our shops transportation units that will carry the ammunition to our fighters. Too, we have other war contracts which, while not directly related to carrying ammunition, do provide supply equipment essential to military operations. ★ The fulfillment of these war contracts are making tremendous demands on our facilities, our staff, our resources. And that's the way we like it! ★ Until the end of the war we hope our one-time customers—old-time friends—will be day-dreaming of the sleek new van bodies they want for peace-time service; that they will buy plenty of War Bonds from Uncle Sam to help these day-dreams come true.

AIDING WAR ADMINISTRATION by making possible the efficient shifting of bureaus and their personnel from crowded Washington to other cities. Allied's skilled drivers and handlers, manning the world's largest fleet of vans, transport not only employees' household goods . . . but also precious, irreplaceable typewriters, adding machines, filing cabinets and other office equipment.

SPEEDING WAR PRODUCTION by making this high-geared nationwide moving service available to industries that are relocating plants . . . shifting employees and their families . . . and calling in specialists from distant points to solve vital production problems.

EASING THE STRAIN ON FAMILIES when fathers and sons join the armed forces and make it necessary to find smaller living quarters. Agent-members in 360 key cities provide safe, modern warehouse facilities where families can store the household belongings that won't be needed till the men return. Families long distances apart are brought together by Allied's nationwide moving service for "doubling up" till the war ends.

SERVING THE ARMED FORCES DIRECTLY by moving or storing the household goods of officers as they are transferred to new posts in all parts of the country.

Hours Lost Through Accidents. Reduction of lost-time accidents, as everyone knows, is an excellent way to increase war production. If any appreciable number of such accidents results from manual handling of materials, the solution may lie in power trucking—with a big gain in efficiency as a bonus. The safe way is also the efficient way.

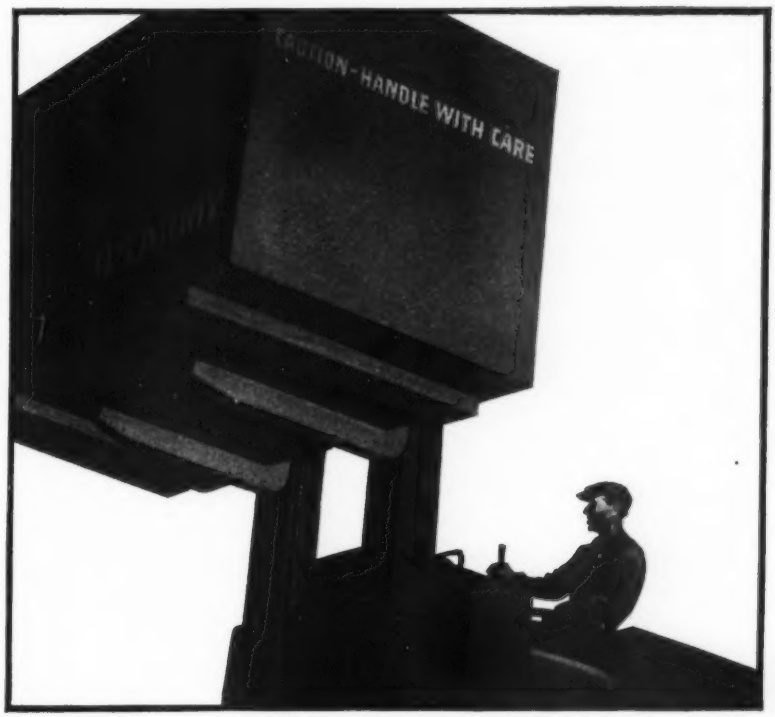

Transportation Job. The whole country is admiring the way the railroads are handling their war-time job. But within industry itself, inside transportation is performing comparable marvels. Many old plants are producing several times their former capacity per-square-foot and per-work-hour, solely because the flow of production and materials has so much improved. To keep production flowing at peak efficiency requires a truck power unit that is not subject to failure on the job—one whose performance is predictable. Another way of saying, "alkaline batteries."

Are You on Our List? Edison's house publication, "Storage Battery Power," is an up-to-the-minute source of authoritative material-handling information. If you're not on our list you can be readily by simply sending us your name and business address.

PEAK POWER needed for war

It is true that all power units in material-handling trucks are specifically rated. But it's power delivered that wins in war production. When the trucks are powered by alkaline batteries they stay on the job, turn out the work expected of them, are not subject to lay-ups for repairs. In many war plants, alkaline batteries are today working much harder than their operators ever expected they would—and are standing up admirably under such peak demands.

All this is not something which just happened. It is the nature of this modern type of power unit. Ruggedness comes from Edison steel-construction, its self-preservation chemical principle, and its fool-proof electrical qualities.

Air Cargo

It's Future Bright

(An Editorial)

JUST one year ago, this magazine launched a series of articles on air cargo, thoroughly aware of the fact that this infant industry had reached a stature that demanded recognition as a transportation factor that had to be reckoned with in the future. To our knowledge, we beat the gun as a trade magazine in paying this recognition.

Since then, air cargo as a subject has received studied attention at special meetings held at all parts of the country. Not only have airline officials, but Government men, economists and manufacturers of allied equipment taken part in the discussions. As a result, the past year has been particularly outstanding as a "news" period in acquainting industry and the public as to what can and cannot be expected from this new transportation service in the post war period.

Just how far air cargo will reach out in supplanting rail and water services can only be conjectured; the nub of this question is cost. That this and other present drawbacks, such as design, are recognized, gives promise that such problems will be attacked objectively and with gainful results. Elsewhere in this issue is a full report on what engineers closest to the aircraft industry believe should be accomplished to make possible many of the visions of those who foresee air cargo performing a major transportation service in the future. None of the present obstacles are insurmountable; all that is needed is the will to achieve.

With this speedier transportation will come changes in methods of distribution of stocks, packaging, and markets. This came with the older forms of transportation, and there is no reason to expect otherwise when air cargo is fully developed. Industry thus faces a period of transformation in the days to come; it should now prepare to delve into the matter from every angle. We sincerely hope that our readers will take advantage of our pages to spread on the records just what their thoughts are on this live question. Whether pro or con, they will be welcome.

Storage Manpower Com. Created by O.D.T.

As the result of the first of a series of meetings held in Washington Dec. 7, the Office of Defense Transportation and the Storage Manpower Committee recently created by O.D.T., will distribute to the warehousing industry information designed to assist the industry in meeting manpower shortages brought about by the war.

The informative materials, which will be prepared by O.D.T. and distributed throughout the industry by the committee, will include a discussion of Selective Service procedure, an explanation of War Manpower Commission organization, and suggestions for the utilization of Federal recruiting and training programs.

The committee and the O.D.T., a spokesman explained, will assist the warehouse industry in working with Selective Service officials of the War Manpower Commission toward an orderly withdrawal of workers for service in the armed forces.

The O.D.T. also will make periodic analyses of the industry's manpower requirements and, at the suggestion of the committee, will consider cold and dry storage operations separately.

The Storage Manpower Committee's initial meeting was presided over by Otto S. Beyer, Director of the O.D.T. Division of Transport Personnel, and Dr. Edwin M. Fitch, assistant director of the division.

Committee members participating in the meeting were Warren T. Justice of Philadelphia, president of the Pennsylvania Warehousing & Safe Deposit Co., chairman of the group, and Elmer Erickson of Chicago, vice-president of the Midland Warehouses, Inc., representing the merchandise division of the industry; G. D. Allman of Chicago, president of the U. S. Cold Storage & Ice Co., and R. C. Taylor of St. Louis, vice-president of the Federal Cold Storage Co., representing the refrigerated division of the industry. Louis Schramm, Jr., of New York City, president of the Chelsea Fireproof Storage Warehouses, Inc., also is a member of the committee. Mr. Schramm was appointed by the National Furniture Warehousemen's Assn. and the other 4 members by the American Warehousemen's Assn.

Representatives of the W.M.C. who met with the committee members and discussed manpower problems and program are: Maj. K. D. Pulcipher, Bureau of Selective Service; George W. Cross, U. S. Employment Service; Philip Van Wyck, Training Division of the W.M.C., and Gen. William C. Rose, Military Division, W.M.C.—Manning.

Army Takes Over 3½ Floors of Central Terminal Co.

The United States Army Air Corps have taken over 3½ floors of the Central Terminal Co. building at 710 N. 12th St. in St. Louis, according to T. J. Terry, general manager. The specific use the Air Corps will make of this space is at present a military secret.—Hoag.

Controlled Shipments Order on Freight Expected

Full scale domestic transportation priorities and limitations on cross and back hauling seem probable in 1943, according to Washington reports. However, industry will be fully consulted prior to and during the draft of the expected control. The action would bring all traffic under regulations similar to those now extending only to foreign trade and certain grains. A permit system on shipments would be instituted and would limit shipments to consignees within stated production sectors. Such bans would be lifted when consumption has exhausted supplies of each area.

Whichever agency that administers the order, W.P.B. or O.D.T., will require each shipper to give advance shipment advice; then no additional movements over that fixed amount would be allowed without an official government permit for transport facilities to pick up the freight.

Shippers are to notify the government that in the next 30 days they expect to move certain tonnages of all types of materials and products. These lists would be culled by the government for movement approval or for holding back. No permits would be needed for the shipments which are to be moved; additional traffic could not move without a special authorization.

It is stated that a special air cargo priority certificate is being developed to cover import of cargoes of strategic materials by air. The W.P.B. already has a system of priorities and quotas on airborn imports. The new certificate is to cover emergency conditions that develope outside of the set quotas and priorities. Steamship imports are covered under a similar system.

Private Truck Owners' War Conference

An important war conference will be held by private motor truck owners at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, Jan. 19-20, under the sponsorship of the National Council of Private Motor Truck Owners, Inc. A series of round table conferences will be held to study those problems which need to be ironed out in order that each individual motor truck may work its full share in winning the war. Government officials will attend.

3150 Federal Workers to Chicago

About 3,150 employes of the War and Treasury Depts. will be transferred from Washington, D. C., to Chicago, Feb. 1. Budget Director H. D. Smith stated that these employes are engaged in the receipt and safekeeping of bonds purchased by officers and enlisted men of the Army. They will be housed in a building leased from Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., at Adams and Markets Streets.

Federal Emergency Whse. News

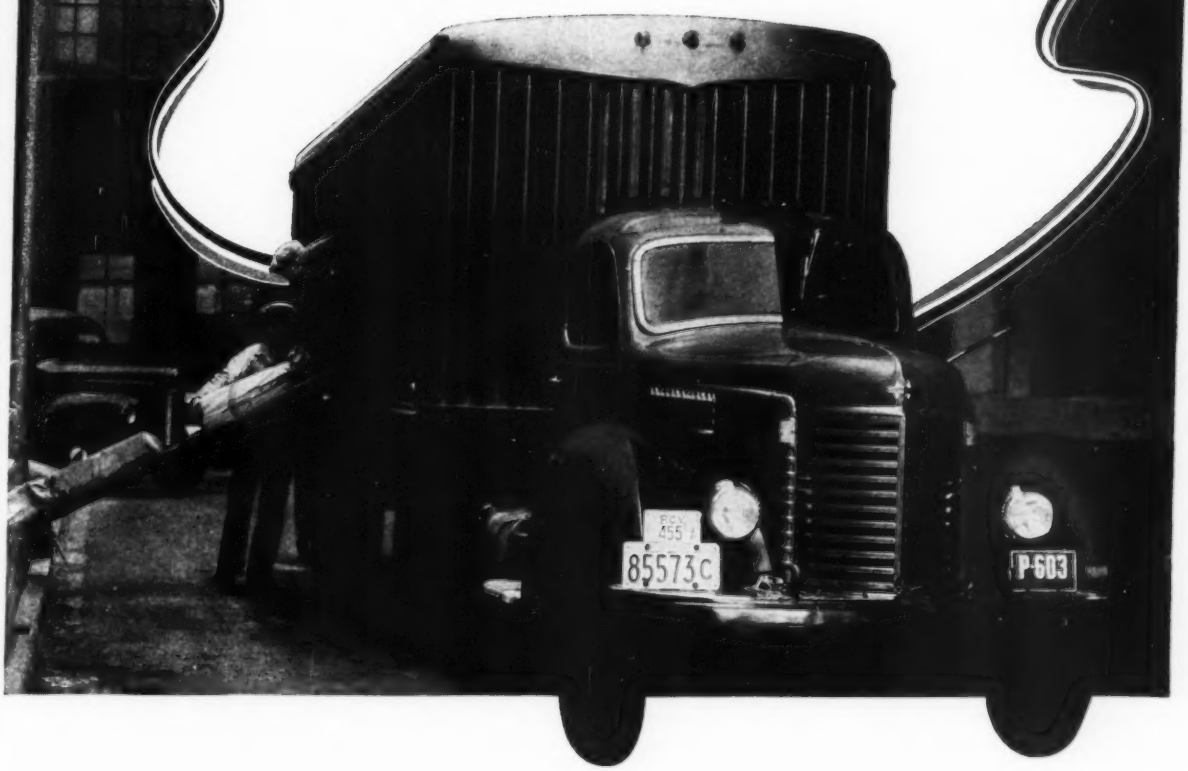

Boston. The Federal Emergency Warehouse Assn. of Boston contract, as of Dec. 18, was in the hands of the O.D.T. for Treasury Procurement signature. The group, however, is free to do business with the Army Quartermaster. If it has to manage outside Government leased space, the group has the right to form a corporation for that purpose; otherwise its contract is not particularly different than that in New York City. Twelve warehouses—this probably will be increased—are in the pool, with the following officers: A. N. Greenquist, Fitz Warehouse Corp., president; Paul V. Amon, Atlas Terminal Stores, Inc., vice-president; Howard E. Wemyss, Hoosac Storage & Warehouse Co., treasurer; W. H. Condon, A. M. Somes Warehouse Co., secretary; Sherman L. Whipple, Jr., Wiggin Terminals, Inc., assistant treasurer and assistant secretary. Walter H. Belcher, secretary of the Massachusetts Warehousemen's Assn., is manager of the group, with offices at 40 Court St.

Other members are: Bowker Storage & Distributing Co.; Congress Stores, Inc.; Federal Warehouses, Inc.; J. L. Kelso Co.; Manufacturers Warehouse; Merchants Warehouse Co.; and the Independent Warehouse Co.—Wellington.

St. Louis. Charles P. Howland has been appointed manager of the Federal Emergency Warehouse Assn. of St. Louis, according to Wilfred F. Long, of the S. N. Long Warehouse, and president of the new group. Offices are in the Title Guaranty Bldg.—Hoag.

Los Angeles. The Federal Emergency Warehouse Assn. of Los Angeles was organized Dec. 2. With this new organization, it is anticipated that the National Reserve Warehouse Co. of Los Angeles will be dissolved. The latter organization was formed in 1941 to provide 1,500,000 sq. ft. of space for strategic raw Milwaukee. Four merchandise warehouses have formed the Federal Emergency Warehouse Assn. of Milwaukee whose offices are located at 125 E. Wells St. H. L. Ashworth is the new group's business manager and Paul H. Paulsen, Brumder Bldg., is legal counsel. Membership is open to all licensed and bonded merchandise warehouses in the Milwaukee area. Management will be under the direction of an executive committee consisting of A. L. Fischer, Atlas Storage Co., chairman; Theodore Hansen, Hansen Storage Co.; A. G. Ewert, Terminal Storage Co.; and E. H. Ottman, National Warehouse Corp. The agreement provides for acquirement by the Government of additional storage space when and if needed, with such additional space to be operated by the association.

A.W.I. Postpones Annual Meeting

Word comes from Associated Warehouses, Inc., Chicago, that it has decided to postpone its regularly scheduled annual meeting. The board of directors will convene during the meeting of the American Warehousemen's Assn., Feb. 10-12.

"Warehousing Operations Today," A.W.A. Convention Theme

The American Warehousemen's Assn. has set Wednesday, Feb. 10, as the opening date of its 52nd annual convention at Edgewater Beach Hotel, in Chicago. The meetings for both the merchandising and refrigerated warehousing sections will run through 3 days, with closing sessions on Feb. 12. "What constitutes warehousing operations today" will be the general theme of the conferences.

"So much is happening daily," said executive secretary Wilson V. Little, in making the announcement, "that it is difficult to tell very far in advance just what our program will include. We plan, however, to spend just as much time as we can in dealing with questions the emergency presents to us as warehousemen.

"Our industry is now closely involved in many aspects of the war effort. The government is the biggest customer of both branches of our business and, as everyone who deals with the government knows, problems arise that differ from those we face in relations with commercial customers.

"The government's way of doing things is not always what would apply in normal commercial transactions. The problem of adapting warehouse routine to government routine and vice versa will therefore be a foremost topic on our agenda. There will be opportunity to compare notes and exchange experiences on how to do what.

"The program will be organized, also, for full discussion of price regulations and ceilings affecting our business; wage and salary regulations; priorities procedure for getting supplies and equipment with which to operate; the manpower situation; economic stabilization plans and other measures that have come into being since our meeting last year. And, too, there will be consideration of the new 3 per cent Federal transportation tax, which is a big question for us. These are all problems we do not ordinarily have to consider in peace times and in themselves are almost sufficient to fill our convention time completely."

No social program is being planned, Mr. Little added, although the traditional annual dinner will probably not be omitted. Election of officers will also be looked after in the usual way, he said. At the time of his announcement the nominating committee had not yet acted.—Slawson.

N.F.W.A. Conference Feb. 15-17, at Chicago

The National Furniture Warehousemen's Assn. has set Feb. 15 to 17 as the date for its national conference to be held at Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago. Executive secretary Edward D. Byrnes, in making the announcement, stresses that the meeting will be a conference, rather than the customary annual convention. All reports and the usual entertainment features of past annual meeting will be dispensed with and the program "confined strictly to business," Byrnes said.

In effect, he stated, the program will present "an intensive course on warehousing, concentrated into 3 days." War time regulations affecting operations of the household storage industry will be the principal subjects discussed. Among topics he listed for consideration, are the following:

Soldiers' and Sailors' civil relief act; 1942 revenue act; transportation tax; wage and hour law; price regulation; truck operation and maintenance; O.D.T. orders; payroll taxes; social security; merit systems of taxation on unemployment; manpower act; selective service; priorities, and post war planning—Slawson.

Mayflower Convention at Chicago, Feb. 6-8

The 12th annual convention of the Mayflower Warehousemen's Assn. will be held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, Feb. 6-8. The board of directors has decided on curtailing many of the usual frills and entertainment features. The business meetings will be different, because usual problems are not foremost in the minds of members today. An effort is being made to have a number of officials appear on the program who can provide complete and authentic answers to many of the current questions and problems brought about by operations under wartime orders and restrictions.

Serving the Nation

WITH EFFICIENT WARTIME MOVES

On the battle fronts mobility is essential to victory—and it's a vital factor on the home front as well. Expert "Move-Ability" is the keynote of North American Van Lines' service to America-at-War

The nation-wide organization which has enabled North American Van Lines to serve the country efficiently during peacetime is perfectly geared to the wartime requirements of long distance moving. Hundreds of important jobs of this kind are being done by North American—for the Army, Navy and other branches of the United States Government, as well as for private concerns and individuals.

Whether the job is moving valuable household possessions or transporting important office equipment and records, these essential factors explain why North American measures 100% on "Move-Ability": Modern Vans . . . weather-proof, powerful, roomy—and all company-owned; Complete Accessory Equipment . . . pads, wardrobes, cartons, etc.; Trained Personnel . . . ready and able to serve you efficiently; Convenient Agencies . . . solidly established and easily reached; Reliable Warehouses . . . for storage over long or short periods.

Industry Analyzes the Future

N.A.M. Meeting Faces Facts on Taxes, Public Debt, Labor and Continuance of Emergencies

THAT Government master-minding in the planning of industrial affairs may have some justification under present conditions and perhaps may be present during the transition period after the war seemed to be the opinion of many attending the 47th annual convention of the National Assn. of Manufacturers, held Dec. 2-4 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City. However, industry wants no continuance of Government control after the war and is well aware that it faces a fight for the free-enterprise system. It also realizes that excessive taxation, bureaucracy, public debt, labor and the continuance of emergencies are factors that will have to be reckoned with before the clouded picture of the future can be cleared up.

Among the resolutions passed were the following:

"Government Activities: Strife is bred of biased, confusing and extra-legal decisions by the War Labor Board and other Government agencies handling labor problems. These agencies should scrupulously conform to the Constitution and duly enacted laws and should be impartial in all their activities as befits the umpire."

"Right to Work: Every one throughout the land—except current offenders—condemns strikes. There is no labor issue on which the public feels so strongly. Strikes have been reduced but the fact remains that bottleneck strikes still cripple the war effort. The time has come when labor must stop all strikes hindering war production.

"Jurisdictional disputes between rival unions impair war production and should be stopped.

"There should be no more picketing which prevents people from working in war plants.

"There should be an end to boycotts which prevent the use of any needed material in the war effort.

"There must be protection by Government of the fundamental American right to work and the right to employ."

"Output Restrictions: There should be no slowdowns or other restrictions which limit the amount of work an employe is permitted to turn out. Such time-wasting devices are sabotage in wartime when every ounce of work counts."

"Compulsory Union Membership: This labor restriction upon unlimited production, usually referred to as the 'closed shop,' is coercive and un-American. Its extension is inexcusable in wartime.

"Its companion evil, the so-called 'maintenance of membership' clause that is achieving dominance of late through War Labor Board decisions should not be imposed by Government.

"Coercion and physical violence in forcing men to join or remain members of unions must vanish from the national scene. They have no place in relations between employers and workers. Compulsion, violence and fear are enemies of the liberty for which this Nation is fighting.

"Workers have been guaranteed the right to join organizations of their own choosing without coercion. The right not to join or to withdraw from such organizations is equally important and must likewise be guaranteed and enforced."

"Renegotiation: Companies engaged in war production now face the double jeopardy of income and excess profits taxes on one hand, and on the other hand of such additional assessments, as administrative agencies may determine under the renegotiation law. Such additional assessments may be initiated as late as one year after the close of the company's fiscal year.

"In simple fairness the liability of companies should not be made contingent upon the application at different times of 2 separate statutes. Present uncertainties arising from application of these 2 laws seriously interfere with war production.

"It is now apparent that the effect of renegotiation, no matter how sincerely administered, may completely destroy the limitations already established in the tax law recently enacted by Congress after long and careful deliberation.

"Now, therefore, the Congress of American Industry recommends that these Committees of Congress (Senate Finance—Ways and Means) proceed as promptly as possible with a complete study of renegotiation in relation to the existing tax law together with public hearings to the end that existing inequities, contradictions and uncertainties, which now interfere with maximum war production, be corrected or eliminated."

The 1943 platform adopted reads as follows:

"The Congress of American Industry pledges all the skill and resourcefulness of industrial management to production for victory, to the end that no fighting man or civilian of the United States shall lose his life for lack of weapons or supplies.

"The Congress of American Industry further pledges that when, with God's help, the United Nations are victorious, industry will be ready to turn its skill and resourcefulness to the works of peace, to new wonders of production and plenty, which will provide employment for returning soldiers and sailors and all others, and enable the American people to resume their historic upward march, spiritually and materially as free men."

Further stated, this platform means that American industry stands for the basic American freedom, will do everything it can to see that they are preserved when peace comes, and will oppose anybody who tries to destroy them.

Frederick Coolidge Crawford, president of Thompson Products, Inc., Cleveland, was elected president of the N.A.M., replacing W. P. Witherow, president of the Blaw-Know Co. Mr. Crawford is also president and director of Toledo Steel Products and Thompson Aircraft Products. He is chairman of the board and a director of the Crawford Door Co., a director of the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Co., and of the Army Ordnance Assn. Mr. Witherow automatically becomes chairman of the N.A.M. board.

At a panel discussion about the uncertainty of the future, it was brought out that any thought on the matter must be based on global consideration; that due to quick air transportation and communication, effects of depressions in any one country are felt in all others, and contrariwise, prosperity is internationally beneficial. If post wear conditions are to be fruitful, then all nations must be freed from want, economic dislocations, and danger of revolution and fear, then this world will have complete elimination of nations preparing for war and in its place a promotion of peaceful prosperity.

It was felt that inasmuch as the United States will play a dominant role in correcting economic dislocations internationally, it is possible that unless industry is freed of financial strangulation brought about by high taxes, controlled earnings and high labor costs, that it will be prevented from making any contribution as in the past in helping industries in other countries get established or back on their feet. Such financing then might be attempted by the Government and should that happen, there would be slim chance of a lasting peace because there is a big difference between disputes between Governments and those involving individual companies.

The 4,000 members in attendance were told by Leon Henderson, Price Administrator, that the American people must be prepared for more controls and restrictions in 1943. He stated that "the bottom of the barrel" in public patience has not yet been reached, and that a greater measure of Government "bureaucracy" and regimentation would have to be accepted before the Nation achieves its goal of victory. Mr. Henderson was applauded when he declared that the policies for the execution of which he is responsible are designed not to destroy but to preserve the system of private enterprise.

In an address after the convention, Mr. Crawford, incoming president, agreed that Henry J. Kaiser's suggestion for post-war development had merit. Mr. Kaiser stated at the convention that some industries make announcement of post-war products now and accept war bonds as "down payments" on them. It was thought, however, by some that Mr. Kaiser's remarks might encourage manufacturers to divert part of their effort from war work in the hope of gaining a competitive advantage in the post-war market. Others who were in accord with his plan felt that if companies have any faith in the future they should show evidence of that faith by advertising post-war products now insofar as it is possible to do so.

UNITED VANS SERVE THE NATION

A message to
TRAFFIC MANAGERS and WAREHOUSEMEN

OUR government recognizes as essential to the war program, the movement of household goods and office furniture and fixtures because the maintenance of the home preserves the morale and increases the productivity of every man and woman participating in war production.

This recognition has enabled our American trucking industry to extend the scope of its operation in spite of the shortage of man power and of the necessity for the rigid conservation of the vital materials needed by our industry.

In 1942, the United Van Lines, Inc., transferred the household goods of military and civilian personnel to all parts of the country, as well as office furniture and fixtures vital to the war effort. During 1943, we will continue to serve the nation and the public to the best of our ability, although with you, we are dedicating our hope and efforts to the speedy conclusion of World War II which must and will be won by Uncle Sam and his Allies to assure for humanity a resumption of its democratic way of life.

Our agents in all principal cities will cheerfully cooperate in helping you solve your moving problems, or we will welcome your direct inquiries to our general office indicated below.

ADEQUACY OF AIR CARGO SERVICE FOR NATIONAL DISTRIBUTION

Part 1—Geographical Distribution of Air Lane Services*

By JOHN H. FREDERICK

Professor of Transportation and Industry, School of Business Administration, The University of Texas.

IN the development of transportation in the United States there has been little coordinated planning. This has unfortunately been true of air transportation even though this naturally competitive industry has been brought to a high degree of monopoly by deliberate government policy. There has been, nevertheless, an expression of dissatisfaction from many sources over the manner in which the pattern of air transportation has been evolving. This raises the question—How adequate were airline services just prior to our entering the World War? The answer to this question is important because airline services will follow the same general pattern after the war that they were following in November, 1941, even though the Civil Aeronautics Board is carrying to a decision all proceedings in connection with applications for new routes or for the extension of old routes on which hearings had been completed up to Dec. 12, 1941.

In answering the question as to adequacy and many other related questions a number of factors must be considered. Specifically: How many of our people have direct air transport service and where are they located? How adequate are our present airports and where are they located? How large or small are the several areas which might be given additional services, and can such communities or trade areas support a program of airline expansion when it becomes possible? There are also questions of potentially increased airmail, passenger, and cargo traffic which must be answered separately, all of which will play a part in determining sound public policy for the future expansion of our air transport system. While the solution to some of these questions will require the test of actual experiment and operations, it is possible at this time to present a composite picture of the air transport situation of the Nation as it exists today, and to point out certain inadequacies and regional inequalities of service, insofar as points and areas served by the present airlines are concerned.

In determining the sources of potential airline traffic of all sorts we are principally interested in where people are located and how many of them now have direct air transport services. We want to know the extent of air transport services and facilities in one portion of the country as compared with another. We want an explanation of the inequalities of development, if they exist, and why they have come about as there are some common misconceptions of what areas of the country are underdeveloped and which have made the most progress in air transportation.

How Services Are Geographically Distributed

According to the 1940 Census, the population of the United States totals 131,669,275. The distribution of population of the United States by geographic division and the proportion of population with scheduled commercial air service in 1940 is given in Table I. It will be seen that of the total number of people, 39,262,344 are living in the 211 towns and cities that by the end of 1941 had direct air transport services by scheduled carriers. (Under restricted airline services since that date the total number of cities served by the scheduled operators is somewhat less). Typically, the Middle Atlantic region consisting of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania shows the greatest concentration of population with 20.92 per cent of the total for the country. More people in this division (30.74 per cent) have direct access to commercial air services than in any other part of the United States. The East North Central division with approximately the same percentage of population as the Middle Atlantic ranks second in the number of persons having direct air transport services, 23.51 per cent of the total. The Pacific division, while it ranks seventh, with 7.39 per cent of total population, has the third largest population with direct airline service amounting to 10.01 per cent. It is probably coincidental that this region with about one-third the population of the Middle Atlantic section, has the same ratio with reference to the per cent of population with air service. In each of the remaining divisions the percentage of total population exceeds the corresponding figure for the number of people served although the variation is not great in any instance.

The outstanding fact to be observed from Table I is the dispersion that exists between the percentages of divisional population now having direct acess to scheduled air services. Here again the Middle Atlantic region is predominant with 43.84 per cent of population having such facilities. This high ratio is accounted for because the large population centers of New York City, Buffalo, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh are in this region. Bearing out the identical population ratios referred to above, the Pacific division with 40.38 per cent shows approximately the same degree of development as the Middle Atlantic section. The large cities of Los Angeles and San Francisco give prominence to this region. The East North Central division with the large cities of Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit, and Milwaukee and serving 34.67 per cent of the population ranks third in passenger traffic development.

It is of particular interest to note that the Mountain district stands higher than the remaining divisions, all of larger population and smaller land area, with service for 25.18 per cent of its people. While the better showings of the Middle Atlantic, East North Central, and Pacific divisions are attributable to the predominance of large concentrations of population, such a characteristic is not present in the Mountain area. It thus appears that this region's high relative position is due to a smaller population and a larger number of points served as contrasted to a large concentration of population at a few points and a smaller number of points served. The remaining 5 divisions show a variation of only 8.6 per cent in the amount of population served, the highest per cent being 23.63 in the West North Central section and the lowest 15.37 per cent in the East South Central division.

Total population of the following 14 cities of over 500,000 is 22,367,825: Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Washington, D. C.

Influence of Large Urban Populations

Mere casual observation of the statistics given in Table I may well lead to the mistaken conclusion that in the development of air transportation services, undue preference has been given to the Northeastern and Pacific Coast sections of the country; this, however, is not altogether true. It is the inclusion in these figures of the population of the major cities in these sections that tends to distort the real picture. The data presented in Table II may serve to modify this impression since the influence of the 14 major cities in the United States of over 500,000 population is removed from the figures for each division.

Under the arrangement in Table II the Middle Atlantic region now ranks second in total population but has declined to last place in the proportion of its people with direct air services, only 8.51 per cent.

For this region we see a slightly more than 5 per cent decrease in its aggregate population, but a 35 per cent decrease in the number of people served in that division. Although there is less than one per cent change in the total per cent of population in the Pacific division the decline in the number of people served is from 40.38 to 23.60 per cent. A rather prominent decline is also noted in the East North Central division, the drop being from 34.67 to 13.63 per cent in the number of people served. Less significant declines may be observed in the New England, West North Central, and South Atlantic regions. It is worth noting that due to the absence of large cities in the East South Central, West South Central, and Mountain divisions there is no change in the percentages for these areas.

The changes just described in the relative positions of the several geographic divisions serve to illustrate the extremely strong influence that large concentrations of population exercise on the development of air transport services. They also serve to emphasize the care that should be used in the interpretation of such data. That the Middle Atlantic, Pacific, and North East Central States are much more advanced over the other States in the development of air services is subject to some qualifications. A high ratio of population served, as has been demonstrated, does not mean that adequate airline facilities are available for the area as a whole. For while the larger urban centers may have these facilities, the remaining and extremely important segment of population living without these centers is at a distinct disadvantage by being without them.

Chart I graphically illustrates, by division, the percentage of population with scheduled air service located in cities with populations of 500,000 or over when we entered the war. The divisions are arranged by rank of the largest percentage of population served. The importance of these large centers as the potential source of air passenger traffic for each division is clearly indicated. In the Middle Atlantic division, 88 per cent of the population with direct scheduled air transportation is located in New York City and Buffalo. Second in rank is the East North Central division with 70 per cent of the people served living in such large cities as Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, and other urban centers. These large urban centers are of decreasing importance in the remainder of the division. Percentages for the East and West South Central and Mountain divisions are not shown, inasmuch as there are no large centers of population located within them. It is significant that of the total population in the United States having direct access to scheduled airlines the 14 largest urban centers account for approximately 57 per cent of the total.

Geographic Distribution of Cities

Further evidence that a large proportion of population served in a specific or closely defined area is not necessarily indicative of the degree of development of its air transportation facilities is offered in Table III. Comparison of the figures in this table with those in Table I discloses decided differences between the population factor and the percentage of cities served in a geographic division. Whereas the Middle Atlantic and East North Central divisions contain almost 44 per cent of the cities and towns of over 5,000 population, together, they have scheduled services available to only 3.52 and 5.57 per cent, respectively, of the communities in their areas. At the other extreme the East South Central and Mountain regions, which account for slightly more than 8 per cent of the total cities and towns, have services to 24.70 and 38.55 per cent, respectively, of the communities in their divisions. Among the remaining divisions there is relatively little change in their standings as between the factors of population and communities served. They tend to cluster rather closely together and each display to a varying degree the characteristics of the divisions just analyzed. The foregoing contrast of the degree of development of air terminals in the several divisions suggest that where there are large concentrations of population, there is a tendency toward the intensive development of air transport traffic at a relatively few centers, and where there is a dispersion of population over a large area, the development of traffic is extensive, covering an increased number of cities.

Summary and Some General Conclusions

When we bring together the salient facts of the preceding analysis we find that:

1. Of the 131,700,000 people in the United States in 1940, only 39,000,000, or about 29 per cent, had direct access to scheduled airline service.

2. More than half of the population now served (57 per cent) live in 14 cities of 500,000 people and over 8 of these cities are located in the Northeastern portion of the country.

3. When the influence of the populations of these large cities is removed, just 15.5 per cent of the remaining population has direct access to airlines.

4. Only 10 per cent of the more than 2,000 cities of over 5,000 people are served by scheduled carriers.

5. The divisional analysis shows some evidence of an inverse relationship between density of population and the number of cities with scheduled airline service.

6. The Mountain and Pacific divisions rank first and second, respectively, in over-all scheduled air services, and contrary to popular belief, the Middle Atlantic and New England regions rank eighth and ninth in order of scheduling airline services.

We have, therefore, a general picture of airline services from the standpoint of the scope of national development today. While these general considerations will not apply with equal force to specific areas, say individual States or some groups of States, they are sufficiently accurate to serve as the basis for some definite conclusions as to the need for future expansion. These will be discussed in a future article.

Girdler Reveals Huge 400-Passenger Plane

Tom M. Girdler, chairman of the boards of Consolidated Aircraft Corp., Vultee Aircraft, Inc., and the Republic Steel Corp., told members of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York on Dec. 4 that his engineers have drawn plans for the production of a gigantic bomber-transport plane which could fly across the Atlantic in a few hours with a crew and 400 passengers or could be used to bomb Europe from bases in the United States or, in a modified version, used as a cargo transport. Production could start now, were materials available.

He also stated that plane speeds of 400 to 500 m.p.h. will be commonplace in the future.

The new plane will make the Consolidated B-24 Liberator bomber look like a toy. As a bomber it could make non-stop trips to Europe and return. As a cargo transport it could carry heavy loads of vital armament and military supplies to distant fronts where sea-lane traffic is too hazardous.

Mr. Girdler stated that the aviation industry now has a "dollar volume" that is 10 times that of the 1940 automobile business. The industry has accomplished miracles of production. "We are building more planes this year than in all the 20 yrs. before the war. Thirty prime contractors operate in 70 different plants and are making 70 types of planes for war uses," he declared.

"The Nearer to Market—The Nearer to Home" . . .

An Address on Warehousing and Distribution at Recent Meeting Held by Traffic Managers' Institute of New York.

By OTTO OLSEN
Traffic Manager, Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Inc.

IT has been my privilege to be associated with Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Inc., since January, 1920, and to watch our company grow from very small beginnings to become the 4th largest tobacco company in the industry.

I'm sure you all have heard Johnny's "CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS" and have sometimes wondered about the mechanics of distribution of our products.

We have found that distribution from warehouses has been most advantageous from many angles, and you will see why as I go along.

We use the public or so-called "merchandise warehouse" almost exclusively and our goods are shipped to them in carload lots. The difference between the carload rate from our plant in Richmond, Va. and the less carload rate represents, of course, a substantial saving.

We opened our first public warehouse in Chicago in 1934, to serve our customers in that locality, but subsequently, we extended the distribution from that warehouse to include a good part of the State of Illinois, most of Iowa, all of Wisconsin, and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

We now distribute our products from 26 warehouses located from coast to coast. Our local warehouse, located in Jersey City, was established in 1935. Prior to that time, shipments were sent via truck from our Richmond factory to our customers in the New York area. Carload deliveries of goods to this warehouse always assures an adequate supply of merchandise, which is always ready for shipment to our customers at the appointed time. If, for example, a customer in New York City requires deliveries on Tuesdays and Fridays, deliveries are now made on these days.

The same is true of the distribution of stocks carried at other warehouse locations. The shortening of the shipping distance to the customer has enabled us to supply them with greater regularity, and orders are now being received with a minimum of damage and a minimum of lost or strayed shipments. The advantage of this is well understood by all of you.

I might say at this point that we exercise complete control over all stocks carried in warehouses. Whenever emergency deliveries of stocks are required, —for example, in the case of a customer located at a warehouse point—we can effect immediate release of stocks by telephone or telegraph. This method of keeping our customers amply supplied at all times is especially important and effective during wartimes, when there is constant fluctuation of men of the armed forces at the various military and naval camps and bases throughout the country. Likewise, in bond, stocks of cigarettes and tobacco are carried by us in warehouses at certain ports of embarkation for immediate delivery to convoys for the armed forces of the United States overseas.

Another reason why distribution through warehouses, in the case of our company, is advantageous, is because you can well imagine that if all of our stocks of cigarettes and tobaccos were located in Richmond, in the event of a fire or flood, this could turn out to be a major disaster.

I know you fellows are interested in fundamentals, and I shall endeavor to illustrate to you how we go about establishing warehouse stocks. First of all, we like to have a nucleus of carload traffic for a particular point under consideration. This gives us the spread between carload and less carload rates, which enables us to operate at a profit after paying the warehousing, insurance and other charges.

The next step is the selection of the warehouse. We usually contact a warehouse representative; such as, the American Chain of Warehouses, Distribution Service, or other similar organizations. They supply us with information on warehousing rates and other pertinent data.

We investigate warehousemen thoroughly, obtaining a Dun & Bradstreet report, 2 banking references, and the names of several large nationally known companies doing business with the warehouse under consideration. We write to the banks for information concerning the warehousemen and take the same step with the nationally known companies; except, that if we are acquainted with a particular traffic manager, we telephone him to find out what his experience has been and what his opinion is of the organization.

In the final analysis, the main consideration is the honesty and integrity of the warehousemen.

You can understand what I mean by the importance of honesty and integrity of warehousemen when you consider that a case of Philip Morris cigarettes is valued at $61.65, and that a peacetime carload of 1,000 cases is worth $61,650.00. In view of this high value you can readily appreciate that the warehouse we select must have adequate protection for our

Engineers Devise New Pattern for Air Cargo Transport System

3-Day Sessions of Society of Automotive Engineers Reveal Vital Role of Materials Handling in Air Cargo Planes That Are to Be Built for Future Needs

RECOGNIZING that the remarkable progress made to date in air cargo transportation under war conditions is but the forerunner of greater development in the post-war period, the Chicago section of the Society of Automotive Engineers in cooperation with the Air Transport Assn. and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, brought together for detailed discussion one of the largest gatherings of aeronautical and allied experts ever held. This meeting, on Dec. 8 and 9 at the Hotel Knickerbocker, Chicago, had a program that drew from 200 to 300 at each session. Four hundred attended the banquet held the first night.

The sessions not only delved into the question of present deficiencies in air cargo plane design in contrast with what post-war designs may offer, terminal handling of air cargo, stowing, and materials handling within the plane, but they discussed the use of gliders, and the big development in air cargo hauling that has taken place in South America.

The thought prevailed that preparations should be made immediately to have specially built cargo planes ready for the pick-up in business that will arrive after the war is over, rather than to rely on converted passenger and Army planes that are now being used. These should be placed back in the service for which they were originally designed.

Dominating the question of cargo plane design was the problem of materials handling and stowing in the plane as well as at the terminals. Discussions on this subject brought out the prediction that cargo planes will have to be designed to carry materials handling equipment, that simple ground based handling devices must be created, and that the cargo compartment will have a flat floor and will be of the general dimensions of a freight car.

Terminal Handling of Air Cargo

KARL O. LARSON, chief engineer, Northwest Airlines, in his paper, "Terminal Handling of Air Cargo," stated that inasmuch as today there is no air cargo in the true meaning of the word, the handling of it from the time it is picked up until it is delivered leaves much to be desired by the airlines and by the shipper. In that connection, he stated:

"The whole development of air cargo is now receiving that kind of thinking and planning that will make it a reality when we can cease handling the materials of war and concentrate our efforts and our equipment on transporting the goods of domestic and world-wide commerce. It is because of this formative stage of a new transportation era that I feel it is our duty to sum up our problems and lay down our ideas in such a way that they may either benefit the development directly or do so indirectly by the stimulation of further thought and analysis by others.

"For the present, we will not concern ourselves with the bulk type of cargo—the unpacked fluid materials such as the fruits, the grains, the minerals, and the liquids. I grant this fact that the cargo airplanes can be built to handle this type of commodity and that this type of commodity will find its way into the air cargo picture at an early date, but I hesitate to take time now to discuss the handling of bulk cargo. Until aircraft are built to handle this material in its fluid state, it will be packaged, and as such, comes in the scope of this discussion.

"There remain 3 broad classifications of air cargo for present consideration. First, the unpackaged piece cargo that can be stowed, such as lumber, meat, quantity production assemblies, sheet stock, and bar and tube stock which by its nature does not submit itself easily to packaging or for which a package is of no particular value to either shipper or receiver. Second—the unpackaged heavy cargo for which a crate becomes superfluous, bulky, and heavy. Large machine assemblies, large machine parts, mobile equipment and furniture are typical of this classification. The third and largest type of cargo is the packaged goods. They may be bundled or crated or baled or in drums or sacks or boxes, but however they come or whatever their size or shape, each is a package.

"Of considerable concern to us is the matter of the proper packaging by the shipper at his plant. The heavy box, the steel barrel, and the oak keg may be good containers for rail and boat shipments, but their weight and bulk make them expensive and inefficient holders of air cargo. Much thought will have to be given to the design of light weight yet strong replacements of these commonly accepted containers and when this has been done, new standards of care in handling will have to be established and practiced to permit their safe use. Treated paper and fabric, thin moulded plywood, moulded and formed plastics, and light weight metals will all find their way into container design."

Mr. Larson then touched on the use of sponge rubber and many new light weight inexpensive shock absorbing materials to replace bulky and less effective packing materials.

He then noted the advantages derived from the pallet system in load handling, stating: "Unpackaged heavy cargo can often be mounted on pallets by the shipper and in so doing he effectively spreads the unit floor loading and simplifies handling. Quantities of small unpackaged piece cargo and small packaged cargo can generally be lashed to a light weight pallet by the shipper and handled as a large unit of packaged cargo. With proper transport floor design, the pallet can be bolted to the floor and by so doing, eliminates the strain placed on both the cargo and the floor that necessarily exists with good lashing."

Mr. Larson then stated that although most of the present airports are today undergoing an expansion on the drafting boards, nothing has been done on the setting up of cargo terminals. "We will have to revise our thinking on air port design," he stated, "to accommodate the large amount of space that an air cargo terminal will require.

"Since early phases of cargo operations will necessarily be restricted in volume, it will be important that we start with only a portion of a cargo terminal so designed that it can expand as the volume of cargo expands without rebuilding and reorganizing each time an expansion is made. Using a medium sized cargo airplane as a basis for a little quick figuring on terminal layout, we can say that this aircraft can generally be parked in a space about 150 ft. square and loaded, this ship may hold about 2,000 cu. ft. of cargo. If this berth were used 12 times per day, 24,000 cu. ft. of cargo may have to be moved to this position. If cargo did not accumulate for more than one day, the cargo for this berth could be housed in about 10,000 sq. ft. of terminal or would require a 70-ft. wide building one story high along one 150-ft. edge of the berth. A 2-story building could handle twice the volume and by docking a cargo ship on opposite sides of the building, twice the volume may be required.

"A long warehouse with aircraft parked on one or both sides will result from planning along these lines. This warehouse may be one of a group of fingers originating from a connecting header which could either serve as an enclosed path of communication between fingers or it could serve as a central warehouse where freight is cleared to and from surface carriers, where transfer air cargo is handled, and where long time storage can accumulate. The alternate to this plan will probably be the large central warehouse for the receiving, shipping, clearance, storage, transfer, and administration of cargo with delivery to and from the cargo aircraft spotted alongside extended loading docks, underground ramps or lifts, or parked at random in the vicinity of the warehouse. This plan will permit the construction of the warehouse across the road from the already overcrowded airport with connecting underground passages."

Mr. Larson then listed 35 terminal requirements, among which are the following: convenience to airport runway layout; rail connection—preferably to transfer yard; good highway connections; rail and truck loading docks; receiving room with facilities for weighing and inspection of cargo; dead storage area; assembly area for ship loads; storage area for ship loads; conveyor system for rapid movement of light cargo and mail; trucking aisles for rapid movement of cargo trains, lift trucks, etc.; pneumatic tube system for rapid dispersal of cargo information; cold storage area; storage vault; inflammable storage; crating and packaging facilities; aircraft handling equipment; radio communications to aircraft and control tower; aircraft air-conditioning equipment; and fire protection.

Man handling of air cargo must be displaced by machine handling, he stated, because of its inefficiency, slowness, and general rough treatment of the cargo itself. Much good handling equipment is available now and better equipment will come naturally with progress.

Mr. Larson stated that present aircraft design leaves much to be desired for efficiency at the cargo terminal dock. The doors vary in height, width, swing, and location and some are close to the ground and others are not. Numerous small extra compartments exist around the aircraft that are each individual loading problems of themselves. Speedy cargo handling inside the aircraft is impossible and lashings and tie-downs are crude. "Around this conglomeration of aircraft we must build a system of efficient cargo handling. The nature of the aircraft requires that the system be flexible, operation requires that the system be fast, and traffic says it must be economical.

"Consider first the case of the aircraft docked alongside the warehouse where cargo must be moved a distance approximately half the span of the wing or distances up to about 100 ft. With a substantial building serving as an anchor, it is feasible to lower or swing into place between the cargo door and the warehouse door a powered conveyor belt or track capable of moving the heavy and the light loads either way with man supervision only. At this distance, the variation in door height ceases to be a factor because of the very small positive or negative slope that will result with the terminal end of the conveyor at standard loading platform height. Using a similar nonpowered roller conveyor, cargo could be moved with a minimum of effort to and from the aircraft by raising or lowering the terminal end of the conveyor to produce slight negative slope in the direction of the movement of the load. Should it be difficult or impractical to swing or lower a powered conveyor into place, as may be the case where the load has been accumulated on a loading dock removed from the warehouse, same can be rolled into place and elevated to required heights. As long as cargo has to be brought to the aircraft, instead of the aircraft going to the cargo, a powered, covered conveyor operating from warehouse to ship has probably more distinct advantages than any other apparent system of handling cargo—whether or not it will come into use will depend largely on our ability to handle the conveyor.

"When the cargo load must be carted to and from the aircraft beyond the protection and facilities of the warehouse, the problems of handling mushroom." Mr. Larson then listed the following problems: ramp ice and snow; multiple handling; maintenance of control and communications; protection of cargo from snow, rain, freezing, and hot sun; protection of valuable cargo; and hoisting and lowering.

Mr. Larson then pointed out that waterproof packaging of all goods subject to damage from moisture would be of greatest help to the cargo handler. The use of cellophane, pliofilm, light rubberized fabrics, treated paper, or waterproofed plywood, he stated, would go far toward making such a requirement practical. Goods subject to damage by heat or cold must either be packaged with insulation or moved in a conditioned truck to protect such goods for the duration they may be on the ramp in any degree of heat or cold that may exist.

The use of canvas tarpaulins, he claimed, is generally inadequate and is an interference to fast handling. Enclosure of carts or trucks always restricts the capacity of the unit and generally interferes with handling. The best obvious solution for 100 per cent protection, Mr. Larson stated, is the elimination of the unprotected run from the warehouse to the cargo door, and the next best is the minimization of this distance. Overhanging canopy roofs extending out over the loading aircraft are possible and may be practical for the protection they offer.

"Multiple handling of cargo," stated Mr. Larson, "is generally necessary when the aircraft is beyond the reach of a conveyor directly from the warehouse. An exception to this is probably the mobile elevating platform which can be loaded at the warehouse, moved to the ship either by its own power or by an auxiliary truck unit, elevated to the height of the cargo door and unloaded directly into the ship. If the bed of this platform incorporates rollers for easy movement of the cargo, it then becomes merely an independent movable section of the conveyor system. The cargo train is a good competitor of the conveyor system on most any problem of load handling. It is handicapped out of doors in bad weather and it does require multiple handling at the aircraft, but it is flexible and flexibility of handling operations around the variety of aircraft that are now capable of hauling cargo is a feature of prime importance. The flexibility of this system of gathering and delivering load, present enough interesting advantages to warrant review:

1—Units of a cargo train can be dispersed around a warehouse and can be loaded as the cargo accumulates. They make simultaneous loading of mail, express, incoming freight, hold-over freight and transfer cargo possible.

2—Loading directly to units of the train eliminates multiple handling in the warehouse. Shippers can deliver their goods already loaded on a train unit.

3—Units of trains can be assembled at any time ahead of schedule or they can be picked up at their individual loading positions just prior to delivery to the ramp.

4—Units holding valuables can be locked in a vault until loading time—those holding perishables can be placed in a refrigerated room.

5—Trains of any size can be assembled to carry the entire load for a large foreign bound freight or a small local pick-up helicopter with a minimum of handling equipment and manpower for either.

6—Transfer cargo can be loaded to and from the cargo train with no intermediate handling, even though any particular carrier's load may transfer to a large number of other carriers.

Best favored of the cargo train equipment is the low, rubber-tired cart, so rigged for steering that it will trail accurately, capable of high speed operation, easily coupled and de-coupled, and fitted with brakes, stated Mr. Larson. At terminals where hundreds of such carts would be required, where a large amount of loaded freight is standing idle, and where shippers will cooperate by loading directly, a simple independent skid platform picked up and moved by a matching hand lift truck designed with wheels, couplings, and steering similar to that of the cargo train cart is available. This combination, stated Mr. Larson, effectively cuts down the investment in handling equipment, permits closer stacking in the warehouse, and allows a system of efficient loading in and out of the aircraft.

Hoisting and lowering cargo between the cargo floor and the cargo train platform requires powered equipment, except possibly in the case of the low cargo door. A system of hoisting from the top that can be efficient for all classes and sizes of cargo and that can be economically built into the aircraft is not available and probably will not be until large cargo carriers designed around such a system are in use. Mobile overhead hoists, when designed for high lift and high capacity, become too ponderous to do the fast and accurate job required as is also true of the portable, powered ramp.

"Probably the best and may be the only hoisting device that can do the all-around job is the fork lift truck," stated Mr. Larson. "Unless the ramp can be kept clean at all times, the common small, factory lift truck with small smooth wheels and low clearance cannot be used. The fork lift truck can pick up any packaged piece of cargo that is pallet-mounted, any loaded skid platform or any cargo train cart and elevate it to cargo door level and hold it for unloading into the aircraft or place it inside the aircraft for further handling by the cargo stowing crew. Hand lift trucks inside the aircraft can pick up and move the pallet-mounted load or the skid platform into position if the aircraft is large enough; the cargo train cart can be moved inside of the cargo hold to the point of unloading for stowing. With proper ship design, the pallet-mounted package or skid-platform with the load already strapped to it, can be bolted to the cargo floor and would require no further lashing. The reverse of all of these operations applies equally favorable when unloading."

Mr. Larson closed his talk by stressing on the need of communications between the incoming plane and the terminal control tower advising of load and arrival time, between the control tower and the pilot directing him to his berth after landing, and other directions under 2-way radio control and a loudspeaker call system connecting the warehouse, dispatching room, etc. Especially at night, good lighting of the ramp will be necessary, in order to speed handling and identification of cargo.

Lower Costs in Post War Period

J. V. SHEEHAN, industrial division manager, Lockheed Aircraft Corp., in his paper, "The Economics of Post War Carriage of Air Cargo," stated that in the post war period there is a possibility that the visionary possibilities of air cargo transport will become tangible realities. Cost of operation will be a big factor then, but it is expected that improvements in engine design, propeller, and aerodynamic designs will make for more efficient airplane performance and consequently lower costs.

Mr. Sheehan then stated that although a combination passenger and cargo plane in the future might have certain advantages, the real aim for efficient air cargo hauling should be an exclusively built cargo plane. The combination plane will serve well during the period of air cargo development.

In his conclusion, Mr. Sheehan stated, "First, it appears that our domestic markets in the immediate post war era, from an economic standpoint, seem to fall in the following order by virtue of tariff and speed competition: 1, rail express and first-class mail within certain range limits; and 2, l.c.l. freight. Second, that as an outgrowth of the advanced research because of the war and the resultant refinements, larger and more efficient airplanes will be produced which will bring airplane operating costs to within a reasonable limit of these markets; third, that the trend will be toward the operation of large combination passenger-cargo planes for trunk line and primary connecting carriers which, after the groundwork has been developed for the servicing and handling of cargo, will give way to exclusively cargo airplanes; that the secondary feeder and off-line feeder plane will be a convertible efficient combination passenger and cargo plane; and fourth, that the largest airplane which can be built will offer the cheapest operating cost per ton-mile. This necessarily assumes that sufficient payload will be available for this airplane. It has been shown that a 2-engine airplane is the most economical to operate if the payload requirements do not dictate an airplane larger than can be handled by the 2 biggest available engines."

Air Cargo Plane Design Changes

CHARLES WOOD, proposals engineer, Douglas Aircraft Co., Inc., in his paper "Airplane Design for Cargo Transportation," claimed that inasmuch as operation at higher altitude is apparently on its way, circular section fuselages may be expected. He also made the prediction that there will be a general desire to reduce the distance from the ground to the cargo compartment and that this may call for some rather freakish designs until "we get on the beam."

Present Deficiencies in Design

CHARLES FROESCH, chief engineer, Eastern Air Lines, Inc., in his paper, "Deficiencies of Converted Passenger Airplanes for Cargo Transport and Operating Requirements," pointed out the following:

1—The conventional type of landing gear renders loading of the cargo compartment with heavy cargo pieces difficult because of the floor gradient. This is aggravated by the lack of anchor points for hoist attachment to help pull heavy items at the entrance door or in the cabin. Also, that in order to have a necessarily horizontal floor in the region of the loading door, the main floor makes an angle with it and causes concentrated loading when handling heavy long pieces of cargo, with resultant floor damage.

2—The standard passenger cabin floors are too weak to stand concentrated loads as well as the rough usage to which they are now subjected as cargo carriers. This has demanded their reinforcement by either strengthening the present floor structure or covering it with an additional floor. This supplemental floor consists generally of plywood sheeting, ⅜ to ¾ in. thick, and has been found quite serviceable, although it substantially increases the empty weight.

3—In the converted airliners, the cabin entrance door is too narrow and too low to take the bulkier cargo pieces. This restriction seriously impedes efficient loading and unloading and limits the size of cargo pieces which can be handled.

4—When cargo has been loaded in its proper location, no means are available to anchor the tie-down cables, ropes or other devices used and a makeshift installation must be provided. Many ideas are being tried and each particular type has its merits and drawbacks. No matter what tie-down means are successfully developed, their satisfactory application will depend primarily on the proper training of the loading personnel in their use.

5—No provisions are readily available for the cargo handler station.

6—There is a lack of simple and concise information to permit the loading personnel to accurately distribute the cargo load within the prescribed balance limits. In addition, it is often difficult to place heavy pieces within the cabin and still retain a center of gravity location which will not seriously affect longitudinal stability as well as takeoff and landing characteristics.

The arrangement of cargo is at best a process requiring intelligent action in view of the variable weight, size and type of cargo pieces, besides the fact that such cargo may be bound for several destinations requiring placement in the compartment to allow sequence unloading.

Loading requires the coordinated effort of the plane crew, ground operations, loading personnel and, when in flight, communications to keep station delays due to loading and unloading at a minimum.

7—Each type of airplane has a different doorsill to ground height, thus necessitating lifting or lowering the cargo when loading from a standard motor truck platform height. This has resulted in serious delays, trip cancellations and inability to operate on schedule.

It has necessitated the use of makeshift devices such as loading ramps to enable transfer from standard truck platform height.

Mr. Froesch then stated that the type of cargo airplane which appears most suitable points to a high wing bi-motor type with tricycle gear. For larger capacities and longer range, a 4-engine low-wing design might be considered superior. A high wing combination, he stated, permits a low fuselage and, therefore, low door height to ground, besides having ample wing to ground clearance to allow freedom of movement for ground vehicles without danger of hitting the wing. The use of a tricycle landing gear is necessary to obtain a level loading floor and ease of loading and unloading. As to doors, Mr. Froesch stated that they should be designed to present minimum obstruction to loading and unloading and should be flush-mounted sliding types to meet this requirement.

Cargo stowage means should be light and efficient. Suitable cargo tie-down devices should be provided flush-mounted and built integrally with the floor and side wall structures. Provisions, Mr. Froesch continued, should be made for a flexible segregation of the cargo compartment space into bins and sections, such as may be obtained by the use of movable stanchions with flexible partitions such as chain doors, which are light. The side walls up to a minimum height of 36 in. from the floor should be protected by means of suitable removable panels, fabricated perhaps from laminated plastic having varying thickness from the ground to the maximum height to secure least weight for maximum protection.

Mr. Froesch then advised attention to the provision for heating, ventilation, refrigeration and air-conditioning, and the establishment of a cockpit arrangement where space would be provided for a cargo handler station where cargo manifests could be checked, loading and unloading supervised, and cargo destinations marked.

Packaging and High Altitudes

C. G. PETERSON, chief engineer, Railway Express Agency, Inc., in his paper, "Packaging and Handling of Air Cargo," stated that tests indicated that rapid altitude changes had no effect on flowers as far as disturbing them from the position in which they were placed within the boxes, or their condition. However, when heat-sealed cellophane wrapping was used, the variation in air pressure caused an expansion and collapse of the cellophane envelopes. This can be overcome by venting the cellophane envelopes.

The effect of a change in altitude on cans with various types of covers was tested. In all, 28 cans from a pint to a gallon in size were tested, some being ⅞ full of water, and some ¾ full. All cans, particularly those that were ⅞ full, showed a pronounced bulge at 5,000-ft. elevation. The bulge increased greatly with the rate of climb, and at 5,000 ft., maximum expansion appeared to be reached. Screw top cans, pressure top, and single and double-friction tops were tested. It would appear, he stated, that with the exception of single friction top cans, all other types of closures can be transported without undue risks when filled and properly closed. From 10,500 ft. up, all single friction top cans showed evidence of leakage.

Tests also showed that radium, thorium, and other radioactive substances including salts and liquids containing radium moved in considerable volume may fog and thus damage undeveloped and unexposed films, including moving picture and X-ray film.

Containers in the form of bags were classed as unsatisfactory by Mr. Peterson. Disadvantages include the difficulty of moving a number of sacks at one time unless they are on a wheeled vehicle; they will not ride a roller conveyor; the size of a bag is definite and inflexible; they offer no protection to contents from crushing; and loading of bags with packages is a slow process; they require special racks to hold them open while being loaded. One improvement that can be made on mail or cargo bags is to provide a stiff patch on one side of the sack so that it will ride a roller conveyor, but Mr. Peterson claims that this improvement would by no means overcome the other disadvantages.

Cargo Carried in Air Trailers

TWO papers on the use of gliders for cargo hauling were delivered by Major Lewin B. Barringer, Chief, Glider Unit, Directorate of Air Support Headquarters, Army Air Forces, and by Richard C. du Pont, president, All American Aviation, Inc.,

Major Barringer stated that the whole question of the future use of large carrying gliders (which probably should be renamed as air trailers) for scheduled air transport is one on which many aeronautical engineers do not agree. "Some say that it will be more efficient to design bigger airplanes. Others feel, as I do, that with properly designed towplanes and gliders used in ranges up to 1,000 miles or so, we will be able to transport more cargo by air, for less money and at the same time bring a far greater flexibility to commercial air transport than has yet been possible. This flexibility will be due to the use of gliders, plus the pick-up developed by All American Aviation and described by Mr. du Pont. This combination will allow us to land as well as launch, cargoes almost anywhere without stopping or even appreciably slowing the prime mover.

"Let me read you something to show that others seem to be thinking along the same lines. It is from an advertisement of Western Air Lines. The heading is, quote, 'Shifting Air Freighters at Greenville . . . in 1949'. The 4,800 horsepower tug cuts off No. 3 glider 10 miles back to soar (it should be 'glide') for a landing unassisted . . . then swoops down over the village airport and, without stopping, smoothly fishes another winged box car into the air, on its way to market."

Major Barringer then presented experiences with gliders in the Army. Even though these gliders are designed only for landing troops with their weapons, their performance figures in relation to their future use for cargo open up many possibilities for their successful utilization. In this connection, Major Barringer stated:

"Now let us see what happens when we tow this glider with this airplane cross country. In each case there was carried in the airplane the maximum fuel load for the particular range, the remainder of the disposable load being made up of cargo. With cruising speed reduced approximately 25 per cent and fuel consumption increased 20 per cent for a range of 300 miles, we found an increase of cargo capacity over that of the airplane alone of 46 per cent. For a range of 500 miles there was an increase of 50 per cent. For a range of 800 miles, the percentage gained rose to 59 per cent.

"With a large glider or air trailer designed specifically for this use and matched in design and wingloading to a towing transport plane we can reasonably expect payloads increased over 100 per cent with decrease in general efficiency of operation of the airplane alone of only 10-15 per cent."

Mr. du Pont in his paper, "Air Pick-Up and Gliders As Related to Future of Air Cargo", stated that inasmuch as events have brought about a high-speed through air service between large metropolitan centers only, the short-haul service or feeder lines, had been held back until Mr. du Pont's company inaugurated an air pick-up system which now operates successfully in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, New York and Delaware. Also, the Post Office Dept.'s experience with short-haul air-mail pick-up, started as an experiment in 1939, has aided materially in bringing about a very serious consideration of the use of gliders in the future to accomplish the same results. In that connection, Mr. du Pont said, "It would now seem that by employing air pick-up by which gliders can be picked up and delivered in the same fashion that air mail and air express are handled today on the air pick-up lines, that we could provide with flexibility a much needed cubic capacity for greater payload.

"The possibility of using gliders in commercial transport operations has been under study for some time by a cargo-conscious airline industry which is seeking the development of air freight as distinguished from air express. The industry realizes that to build up this traffic, the ton-mile costs of air transportation must be drastically slashed, and that at present the airplane which will enable the industry to compete with surface carriers for this traffic on a cost basis is not in sight. The solution of the problem is more capacity and lower operating cost. As a means to this end, the glider attracted active interest which has been intensified by its spectacular success in transporting troops and war supplies."

Left to right: Com. C. H. Schildhauer, Naval Air Transportation Service; Ray Kelly, United Air Lines; Col. H. B. Harris, assistant chief of staff, Air Transport Command, Army Air Forces.

Mr. du Pont, in the discussion that followed his speech, visualized the time when gliders might be converted into highway cargo trailers after they had been landed at a field, their loads staying intact and their wings removed so that they might be pulled by tractors. Gliders, he also thought, could be used for fueling power planes in the air and could be developed to carry special loads on long trips.

Air Cargo in So. America

J. PARKER VAN ZANDT, Director, Office of Air Transport Information, Dept. of Commerce, in his talk, "Some Aspects of Air Cargo Operation in Latin America", stated that air cargo has played an important part in its growth and that the airline network is 2½ times greater than in the United States. There are some 44 operating companies with 750 scheduled stops, as compared with 18 air carriers in the United States with some 260 stops. Cargo-pounds carried is some 6½ times that hauled in the States. Latin America, of course, lacks our highway and railroad development, and that for the most part explains why the airplane has been given such an unequaled opportunity for usefulness.

In closing, Mr. Van Zandt stated that if the annual volume of United States-Latin American commodity exchange can be maintained in excess of 2 billion dollars a year, as it was in 1929, for example, and sufficiently attractive air cargo rates can be established, there should be a potential business of several hundred million pounds awaiting the inter-American airlines.

Speakers at the banquet included Commander C. H. Schildhauer, Naval Air Transportation Service, whose subject was "The Naval Air Transport Service", and Colonel Harold R. Harris, assistant chief of staff, Plans Div., Air Transport Command, Army Air Force, whose subject was "The Importance of Air Cargo in the War Effort." Commander Schildhauer outlined the basis of the militarized air transport service in wartime and covered such questions as paratroop operation, glider towing, organization problems, the cooperation of airlines in providing the "know how", the types of cargo carried, etc. "Between Aug. 1, 1942, and Nov. 1, 1942," he concluded, "the ton-miles per week flown by the Naval Air Transport Service alone, increased from approximately 155,000 to 270,000."

Colonel Harris brought out that the Air Transport Command's ton-mileage for one recent month was greater than the combined figure for all the airlines of the United States for the entire year 1941. He also stated that "our world air routes now add up to more than 60,000 miles, which can be compared to the pre-war total of 41,000 miles for domestic airlines.

3 More States Protect Road Funds

Iowa, Oregon and West Virginia in the Nov. 3 elections voted to amend their State constitutions to require that all special highway taxes be spent for highway purposes, thus increasing to 14 the number of States having constitutional requirements that all special highway taxes be dedicated to highway purposes. Kansas and Missouri in 1928 were the first States to safeguard highway funds by amendments to their constitutions. Similar action has since been taken by California, Colorado, Idaho, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, No. and So. Dakota.

Air Cargo Research at Wayne University

Acceptance of a fund for air cargo research has been announced by Wayne University, Detroit.

In making public establishment of the program, Dr. David D. Henry, executive vice-president of the university, stated that the project would be known as the "Evans Grant for Air Cargo Research" in recognition of its founder Colonel E. S. Evans, Detroit industrialist and aircraft authority.

Research will be under the direction of Dr. Spencer A. Larsen, Associate Professor of Marketing in the School of Business Administration. Allen Dean, transportation expert, Detroit Board of Commerce, will serve as traffic consultant.

Colonel Evans stated his purpose in sponsoring the research is to get down to fundamentals regarding traffic that is likely to be available at the conclusion of the war for transportation by aircraft. Pointing to the huge fleet of heavy load-carrying planes now being constructed for our fighting forces and their transport services, Colonel Evans said, "Much has been written about the commercial use these aircraft will be put to when peace comes. Our purpose will be to determine as nearly as possible the exact cargo that will be feasible for transportation by air."

Continuing, Evans said, "Spokesmen have referred to the fact that 45,000 giant planes alone hurtling through the sky at 250 miles an hour could equal the carrying capacity of the entire American railroad system. Others have visioned displacement of the entire merchant fleets of the trading nations with aircraft that exceed by 20 times the crawling pace of surface vessels."

"Our efforts," stated the Colonel, "will be to sift out actual available traffic that may lie beneath such glittering generalities. We intend to analyze first the business America was doing both at home and abroad before the war. Next will come forecasting of post-war commerce. From the Nation's freight movements as a whole must be separated such obviously unsuitable air traffic as coal, gravel, lumber, iron ore and other low-value, heavy-moving commodities."

"Further," he said, "we must eliminate short-haul local traffic to which air transportation could contribute nothing. Finally, we will come to a consideration of those movements of commerce which can be substantially benefited by delivery within hours where rail or highway or water carriers now take days or weeks."

"By this statement," Colonel Evans explained, "I do not mean that air transportation of freight will remain in the luxury class it presently occupies. Aside from great increases in the useful load of the planes themselves, trains of 'flying box cars' will be available. I have long championed the use of gliders for freight traffic. A tug plane towing light-weight, cheaply constructed freight gliders will sharply reduce the ton-mile cost of air transportation. These developments are now a reality with the Army. Their adaptation to commercial use awaits only the cessation of war.

"Our staff will not only analyze the commerce of America, both domestic and foreign, but will include a survey of aircraft and their operating costs. The study will be a continuing one, keeping abreast of changes and improvements in equipment as they occur."

Dr. Larsen, who is also principal economist in the Wholesale and Retail Policy Section of the War Production Board at Washington, has drafted the form of analysis that will be used in conducting the study of America's commerce. Said Larsen, "It is our plan to go beyond the customary statistical analysis of business and endeavor to calculate some of the changes that will inevitably result from the impact of war upon the people of the world and their buying habits. Under pressure of necessity we are now making daily strides in production that would customarily take years. There is no need to emphasize the great progress made in the creation of many essential articles from synthetics. Every man in the street has seen these products on the dashboard of his automobile or in the kitchen of his house."

"But changes in character, weight, and value of consumer goods," continued Dr. Larsen, "are not confined to synthetics. Our steel production today has exceeded anything our peacetime needs could have visioned. Plant capacity for light-weight metals such as aluminum and magnesium has so expanded in volume that our post-war output will permit their uses in thousands of items that heretofore have been impossible because of prohibitive costs. These new materials and new products in relation to the time value factor in business operations will be evaluated in seeking to determine the commerce that will be susceptible to and benefited by air transportation.

"Other factors that will influence the use of cargo aircraft include the shifting in markets that will come with peace. I am thinking of the great changes in the buying power and living habits of peoples throughout the world, brought about by the failures and fortunes of war. In addition to the impetus which our national policy of 'good neighborliness' toward our friends in the Other Americas will provide in commerce, new prosperity is coming to many persons through the force of drawing raw materials from new sources."

By way of example, Larsen pointed out Cuba is enjoying fat receipts from shipments to the United States of several badly needed minerals. That she is helping to replace the chromium (for alloys and stainless steels) that once came from Africa, the Philippines and Turkey; manganese (to desulphurize and deoxidize steel) that once was supplied from Africa, Russia and British India; nickel (for hardening armour-plate and making stainless steel rust-proof) now needed beyond the ability of Canada to satisfy our unending demands.

He said American dollars are flowing to Mexico in return for shipments of antimony (to make metal brittle for bullets and shrapnel) that once came to us from China; for mercury (used in antifouling paints for ships, fungicides, scientific work) formerly controlled by Germany and Italy.

Bolivia, he declared, is getting new wealth from our purchases of tin and tungsten; Peru from antimony; Brazil from manganese.

The traffic study, according to Dean, will incorporate the talents and experience of industrial executives in the principal manufacturing areas. Several have already agreed to serve in an advisory capacity. From them will come forecasts regarding the products to be made, materials to be used and markets to be served when America is again free to manufacture consumer goods.

Advice of aircraft engineers and producers will be sought on development and trends in construction and costs. "It is only by keeping abreast of equipment changes and accompanying transportation costs," declared Dean, "that appraisal may be made of the traffic that can be influenced to cargo aircraft by rates and carrying advantages."

From time to time the survey will release material that has been sufficiently completed to serve some

Shipment of Palletized Unit Loads A Reality!

Industry and the armed forces find that this method of shipment effects tremendous savings in man hours.

IN the January issue of DandW for 1941, the question was asked: "Are pallet shipments possible?" At that time, industry was making rapid strides toward the shipment of palletized unit loads, with a wide variety of products, but due to the necessity of changing from regular domestic production of war materials, many plans which were being made at that time have been set aside for the duration.

As the armed forces started to expand their storage and distribution requirements, it was natural that they should turn to more modern methods of handling materials, but it was necessary to equip the warehouses with various types of mechanical devices in order to handle the large flow of supplies being received, stored and then shipped to other destinations.

To bring about this extensive installation of modern materials handling equipment, it has been necessary to procure the equipment, put it into operation, and train a constant stream of personnel in its operation.

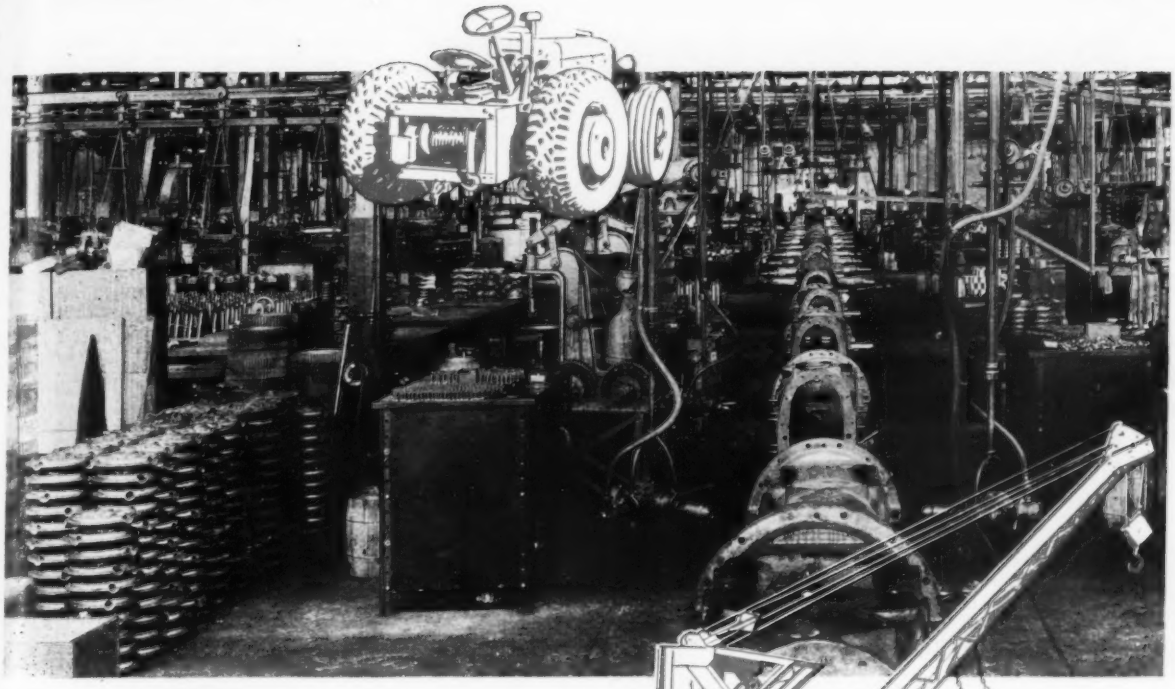

Right from the start, the Depot Operations Branch, Storage & Distribution Division of the Quartermaster General's Office realized that the pallet and fork truck system was the best method for handling subsistence (food supplies), because the various types and sizes of packages facilitated quick palletizing and stacking.

The magnitude of the storage problem for this type of supply is difficult to comprehend unless the individual has been in direct contact with the various depots located strategically throughout the country, but it is safe to say that never before in the history of the world, has there been such a great storage problem under the control of one group. This problem has been magnified by the fact that it is not a static storage problem but a mobile storage problem with the turn-over in some instances being every 7 days. It will therefore be seen that every individual package handling that can be eliminated has a direct bearing upon the man-hours required for the loading, handling, stacking and distribution of this type of supply.

Ready★★ to Tackle Tough War Jobs

Here is one of the routes to victory—an assembly line in the Case tractor works. It is the birthplace of power that builds America's might in airports, shipyards, munition plants, all manner of civil and military establishments working together to fortify our freedoms.

Working together with tractors from that line are amazing machines of many other manufacturers. Teamed with Case tractors are winches that wrench stubborn stumps from solid soil to make way for flying fields and sprawling factories. There are loaders that scamper to stockpiles, lift materials into trucks or carry them to hoppers or conveyors. There are cranes that lift and lower clumsy castings, that load and unload ships and cars. Sundry styles of snow-plows keep roads and streets, sidewalks and work areas open for operation as usual.

Back of this teamwork between swift-working machines is teamwork in the minds of men—the engineers of Case and of the companies which build the specialized equipment. That same cooperation by Case engineers is gladly available to you, either as builder or user of tractor-powered equipment.

Now, of course, war needs come first. All Case industrial tractors and power units go to government agencies or companies in vital war work. Likewise, war contributions have first call on Case engineering service. If you have a tough power problem to lick, a part of the national program to lick our enemies, put it up to us. J. I. shipments from manufacturers to depots, from depots to depots, and from depots to ports, was given careful consideration in developing the storage layout of subsistence supplies, but before this could be put into operation it was necessary to equip all of the various warehouses with fork trucks, and at least one standard size pallet, so as to make it possible to handle these unit loads quickly, safely and with the minimum amount of man-power, at the same time having the system interchangeable, so it would not be necessary to always return empty pallets to any one depot.

With this thought in mind, a pallet 32 in. long and 40 in. wide was developed as the Quartermaster standard for subsistence, and a 2,000-lb. capacity fork truck was utilized for the handling of this size pallet. The reason for working with this size fork truck is that the average load on this size pallet will not exceed 1,800 lbs., so there is very little possibility of overloading the trucks in the storage and handling operation, and at the same time, the smaller truck is able to enter either a freight car, a semi-trailer, or a motor truck, without damaging the vehicle being loaded. They can also be used in multi-story buildings, where floor loads are sometimes limited.

In order to prove the advantages of palletized unit load shipments, the Depot Operations Branch, Storage and Distribution Division, of the Quartermaster General's Office, recently assigned Captain Charles Dacosta, Lt. Robert C. Doyle, Mr. Neal Leary, and the writer, to make test shipments from a depot to a port, and from a depot to a depot, in order to ascertain the possibility of standardizing on this method of handling.

The first shipment was made from the New Cumberland, Pa. Depot to New York City about the middle of November; and the second shipment was made from the Columbus Depot at Columbus, Ohio, to the New Cumberland, Pa. Depot, the latter part of November. It was necessary to give consideration to a number of factors in making these shipments, and careful analysis was made of the previous method and the proposed method. In the past, subsistence items, which are generally packed in weatherproof cardboard cartons, wire bound shooks, or solid wooden boxes, have been loaded into the box cars and hand-stacked. The method of handling these packages from storage to the car varied, either using pallets and fork trucks, hand trucks, power conveyors, or gravity conveyors, but each case had to be hand-handled and loaded in the car, or unloaded from the car, as shown in Figs. 1 and 2, and rehandled at the point of unloading.

Frequently, a carload of subsistence, with an average of about 2,200 cases, depending upon the size of the car, required approximately 18 to 21 man-hours for unloading, and if mechanical materials handling methods were not used for stacking in storage, additional man-hours were required for this operation.

The size of the crew used varied in accordance with the various types of equipment being used, and the method of handling, but it generally averaged about 8 or 10 men per gang. The operation would require approximately 2½ hrs. elapsed time under normal operating conditions.

When the method of palletized unit loads was developed, it was necessary to survey the type of package to be handled. On the initial shipments, 2 different types of packages and commodities were used. In developing the shipment to New York, study was made of the best possible method of palletizing the Type K Rations, which are packed in wooden cases, 24¼ in. long, 12½ in. wide, 22¼ in. high.

Three layouts were made as to the best method of palletizing, so as to get the maximum number of cases on to the pallet, and this layout is shown in Fig. 3.

The one that adapted itself best to this type of case was arrangement C, which requires steel strapping of 30 cases to each pallet. Schematic arrangements were then developed for placing the pallet load in the cars, filling in between the pallets with loose cases, so as to get the maximum carloading capacity. It was felt that this type of loading would require the use of endgates and steel strapping, to hold the loads in place in transit, and Fig. 4, shows the actual layout and loading of the cars, both before shipment and upon receipt of shipment, after having been in transit with rough handling.

No damage was experienced, and the palletized unit load car was unloaded, in one case in 6 man-hours, and in another 4 man-hours, using a fork truck and operator, also 2 men palletizing the loose packages. Note Fig. 5, how well these 2 palletized unit loads can be placed, either on larger pallets for distribution on the dock, or on slingboards for handling by an overhead crane method.

On the second shipment, which was made from Columbus to New Cumberland, the experience gained on the first shipment was utilized and it was decided that these shipments would be made without either strapping the cases to the pallets, or using endgates or steel strappings for holding the load in the car.

Since shipments were made from Columbus, taking the packages off the end of a production line, it was decided to palletize the loads when placing them in the car. Figs. 1, 2, and 6 show the method of loading the cars without pallets, and also the new method of loading the cars with pallets. There is no difference in the loading time, nor does the palletizing slow up the operation. The same quantity could be placed in the car with either method, but it was decided on these first cars, not to put too many loose packages on top of the palletized loads.

The loads were in no way fastened to the pallets, nor was any extra dunnage or bracing used, but the open spaces between the palletized unit loads were filled with loose packages. Shipment was made in the ordinary manner, from Columbus to New

When this car was received at New Cumberland, it was noted that several tiers of packages had shifted, as shown in Figs. 7 and 8. While this caused a delay in the unloading of the first few pallets, located in the doorway, it was possible for the fork truck operator to pick up the other loads without difficulty and place them in storage without rehandling.

Truck Mechanics' Draft Deferment

Forced by a growing threat of a breakdown in highway transportation, caused by a serious drain on truck shop mechanics to war material plant employment, the War Manpower Commission has now prepared an order that gives these men draft deferment in a class along with essential war plant workers. The new order considers automotive shop mechanics as essential to victory as war plant employes. The bulk of complaints from truck operators has centered around mechanical forces, but serious drains on personnel have been felt in other departments, notably drivers, dispatchers and others. Just what will be done about these men has not been made clear, but due to the deferment of mechanics, there is a ray of hope that some suitable action will be taken on the other classes of personnel.

Lease-Lend Pooling of Denver Trucks

A bottleneck in truck transportation of war materials through Denver, Colo., is believed broken by the co-operative action of 250 regional truckers in pooling their equipment on a "lease-lend" arrangement. Told flatly by Capt. Hartwell K. McKee, war department transport officer, that the Denver bottleneck must be eliminated, truck operators were quick to offer their equipment in a plan to sidetrack civilian trade for war supplies, and interchange trucks to speed the flow of essential traffic.

The truckers' meeting in Denver last month under the auspices of the Colorado Motor Carriers Assn., pledged to move these supplies and avoid any further delays. Twenty giant trucks, some with trailers attached, were placed in the pool under an emergency mobilization plan.

One of the major causes of delaying shipments through Denver was the reloading of cargoes from one truck to another, it was pointed out. Under the lease-lend agreement, the cargoes will remain in the trucks which will be transferred from one shipper to another.

E. Robert Baker, Denver district manager of the O.D.T. Motor Transport division, praised the cooperation of the association members in whipping a critical problem.

He cited a 500 per cent increase in truck traffic through Denver in the last 6 mos. to show how truckers have been swamped.

The association expressed opposition to a rumored proposal of O.D.T. that truck operators be limited to a 300-mile radius, and also went on record as unanimously opposing the present national highway speed limit of 35 m. p. h. for common carriers.

The speed limit, as applied to heavy Diesel freight trucks designed to operate at higher velocity, was generally assailed as being unworkable, highly destructive to existing equipment at a time when parts are difficult to get, and causing a serious slowdown in the transportation of through freight. The operator of one large Denver-to-West-Coast truck line said:

"We have figured the speed limit added 26 hrs. to the time required for the run to Los Angeles, and 28 hrs. to San Francisco. At the same time our trucks are often laid up 3 to 5 weeks at a time through inability to get the parts made necessary by these breakdowns."—Alexander.

Eastman Sounds Warning

Warning that ". . . our domestic transportation is dangerously close to the margin of safety, a plea for economy and efficiency in both freight and passenger traffic because of the terrific shrinkage in domestic facilities was made by Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, at Los Angeles on Dec. 3.

Eastman was principal speaker at 2 meetings in Los Angeles. In the morning he addressed a war conference sponsored by the California State Chamber of Commerce to map a program to increase war production and speed transportation.

"As transportation facilities on sea and in the air have diminished and as rubber-borne transportation has decreased," he said, "a heavy burden has shifted onto the railroads. The tides of traffic have sent much of this load to and from the Pacific Coast because of its great war production plants, and the rail lines serving this territory are severely overloaded."

Eastman declared that in 1941 the revenue ton-miles of freight carried reached an all-time peak, but that this year the railroads are carrying nearly 30 per cent more ton-miles than in 1941. This task is being accomplished, he stated, with 30 per cent less freight cars than the railroads had in 1929 at the height of the boom period, and with considerably fewer locomotives.

Approximately 1,000 members of the Los Angeles transportation fraternity gathered at the Hotel Ambassador at noon on Dec. 3 to hear Eastman discuss the trucking situation. Herbert Holt, vice-president of Trucking Industry, Inc., presided at the meeting, which was sponsored by Trucking Industry, Inc., Los Angeles Transportation Club, Los Angeles Warehousemen's Assn., Truck & Warehouse Assn. of San Diego, Motor Truck Assn. of Southern California, United Van & Storage Assn., and 16 collaborating organizations.

"We are following a different course this time than we did in the last war when the U. S. Railroad Administration was created by the government and the government practically conducted all transportation," Eastman said. "This time our national transportation facilities have remained in private hands and private operation. Our transportation men are getting the most out of it they can and cooperating with each other in the process.

"The railroads deserve the praise that they have received, but it is nevertheless true that they could not have done the war transportation job without the aid of other forms of transportation, particularly trucks."

Eastman emphasized that the United States is dependent upon rubber-borne transportation to an extent not even approached in any other country. He stated that 1,000,000 trucks are used by the American farming industry, 3,200,000 by private individuals and business, and 600,000 in for-hire trucking and other capacities.

On the rubber situation, Eastman said:

"This country has about 5,000,000 motor trucks whose mileage has been cut 25 per cent below last year's level, although as much tonnage is being carried.

"The present allotment of rubber for tires of commercial vehicles is based on the premise that aggregate truck mileage can and must be cut below the 1941 level. If we cannot accomplish the 40 per cent cut, the supply of new tires will, on the present information, be insufficient to sustain all operations, and some must cease for a time."

Referring to general order No. 21 which set limitations on mileage and gasoline, imposed load requirements, and provided for certificates of war necessity, he said:

"I do not like that order; no one does, but I could see no escape from it. It was the hardest decision I ever reached."—Herr.

Calif. Truck Insurance Given Blanket Coverage

New regulations governing truck insurance for units operated by for-hire carriers became effective in California on Jan. 1, 1943, under State Railroad Commission supervision.

The new order provides for blanket coverage in instances where an operator takes out a policy for his entire rolling stock instead of individual policies.

The new plan is the 2nd introduced within 3 years by the CRC to simplify the truck insurance setup. In January, 1940, the commission instituted a uniform endorsement regulation which eliminated involved phraseology, "joker" clauses and other factors which theretofore had complicated insurance for truckers.

Effect of the new regulations is expected to be felt most by seasonal operators who carry insurance on several trucks of their own but who have made it a practice to overlook insuring units they rent for handling seasonal peaks. —Harr.

35-Mile Tests Prove Lack of Conservation

A private test was made on the West Coast rcently on the efficiency and conserving aspects of the 35-mile speed limitation. The trucks traveled between certain Pacific Coast points, including Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Portland, and Pocatello, Idaho. Two trucks and 2 trailers, normally loaded, left each city, one instructed to proceed to its destination at 35 m.p.h., the other at 45 m.p.h. The drivers of the test trucks checked their speed every mile of the route, noted gear changes, brake applications and driving time. The figures were as follows, reported by Garrett Freight Lines, Pocatello, which made the test:

The highway distance from Salt Lake City, via Cedar City and Mountain Pass, to Los Angeles, is 747 miles. The truck rolling at 45 m.p.h. on this run made it in 22 hrs. and 30 min., brakes were applied 302 times; and gears changed 823 times. On the same run, the driver adhering to the 35 m.p.h. speed took 28 hrs. and 35 min., applied the brakes 641 times, and changed gears 1241 times.

In a test from Portland to Pendleton and from Pendleton to Boise, Idaho, a total of 486 miles, the truck moving at 45 m.p.h. made the trip in 14 hrs., 20 min.; brakes were applied 185 times and gears were changed 297 times. Trailing along behind, the 35-m.p.h. truck consumed 19 hrs., 15 min.; applied brakes 294 times and shifted gears 575 times.

In a short-run test from Salt Lake City to Pocatello, 177 miles, the 45-m.p.h. truck made it in 5 hrs. flat; applied brakes 41 times and changed gears 202 times. The 35-m.p.h. truck made the trip in 6 hrs. 15 min.; applied brakes 132 times and changed gears 252 times.

Thus, these tests prove the slower speed was responsible for greater running time, greater driver fatigue, more fuel consumption, more rubber and brake lining wear, and more gears chewed away.—Gidlow.

Keeshin's Woman Driver's First Run 250 Miles

Keeshin Motor Express Co., Inc., Chicago, is claiming another "first" in highway motor transportation history for having hired what company officials assert is the first woman highway truck driver in the United States and sending her off with a 31,000-lb. load on a 250-mile night trip from Chicago to Cedar Rapids, Ia. The lady was Mrs. Virginia MacLean, mother of a 7-yr. old daughter, and experienced as a cattle truck driver for her husband. Other women have driven trucks before, but on the word of the Chicago Teamsters Union, this was the first trip on which any woman had driven a commercial truck without a man along.

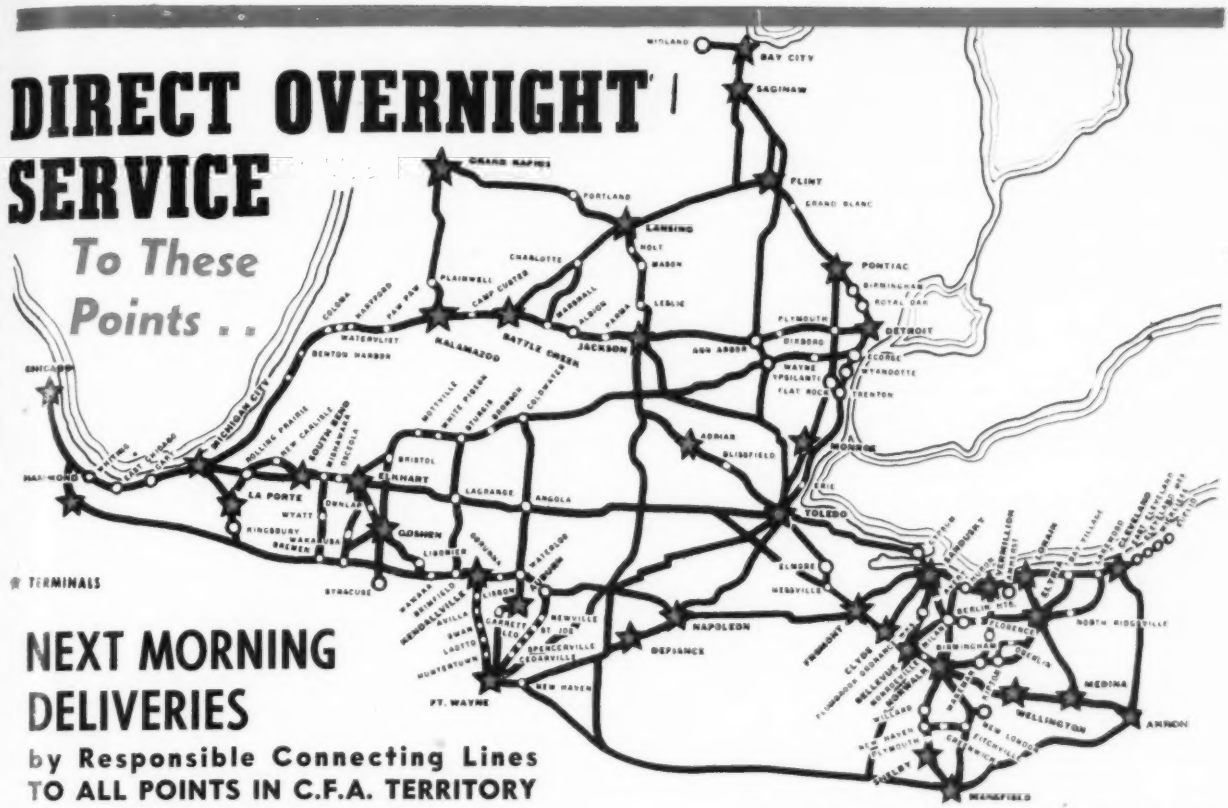

Just to be on the safe side, J. L. Keeshin, company head, had 2 men from his safety department pace the lady in a coupe as far as the Mississippi River. Nothing much happened, however, and the truck went through in good order. Riding with Mrs. MacLean was a girl reporter for a local paper, who logged the journey and wrote it up for posterity.

Convinced by this ice-breaking expedition that women can handle his trucks, Mr. Keeshin is talking of opening a school for women truck drivers, while beauty shops are said to be designing a woman trucker's hair-do and the tailors are thinking up suitable clothes for them to wear.

As for Mrs. MacLean, "It's just too long a trip for any woman to make," she said, "and then turn

Average Tire Life 102,040 Miles

Freightways has just issued a report on the results of its members' tire conservation program. This report shows that, during the first 6 mos. of 1942, the average life per tire was 102,040 miles, based on a record of 1,039 in use. This figure does not include the miles that these tires were operated in terminal areas.

Out of the total of 1,039 tires, 960 of them were recapped with 2,146 applications, an average of 2.2 recaps per tire. The 79 tires that were not recapped averaged 50,652 miles per tire.

The report also shows that the average miles received from tires taken out of service in the first 6 mos. of 1941 was 90,124 miles, as compared with 102,040 miles received from the tires taken out of service in 1942. Thus, the average number of miles obtained from tires in 1942 was increased 13.3 per cent over the 1941 record.

Montgomery Ward Sues on Strike Delays

A long list of Western truck lines, railroads and express agencies was named in 2 suits just filed by the mail order house of Montgomery Ward & Co., charging that the transport companies refused to move merchandise in and out of Ward's branches in Oakland and Portland during a strike involving "hot cargo" complications. The suits claim damages totaling close to 5 million dollars in the 2 separate court complaints.

The first was filed by Ward's Oakland, Cal. office against 19 transport firms in that region and asked damages amounting to $2,026,544, claiming this amount of business was lost when the defendants failed to move merchandise to and from the Montgomery Ward mail order house in Oakland while a strike of AFL retail clerks and warehousemen was in progress. The strike lasted from December, 1940, to July, 1941. Attorney for the plaintiff, F. H. Hagar, brought out the fact that the employes of the common carrier organizations refused to handle Montgomery Ward's merchandise as a sympathetic gesture towards the clerks and warehousemen of Wards who were on strike in the Oakland plant. This is commonly known as a "hot cargo" issue and has been the cause of considerable labor strife in the last few years on the Pacific Coast, particularly in California. A law was passed against "hot cargo" or the secondary boycott by labor during the 1941 legislature here; labor initiated a referendum, the issue was on the ballot this November, and after a bitter pre-election battle, "hot cargo" was outlawed, although the majority was not great. The Ward damage suit has been hanging fire due to the uncertainty of the legal status of this secondary boycott law. It was originally filed about a year ago.

The 19 companies named in the damage suit include the following: Southern Pacific Co.; Railway Express Agency, Inc.; California Motor Express, Ltd.; Carley & Hamilton, Inc.; Consolidated Freightways, Inc.; Conyes Freight Lines; Farnsworth & Ruggles; Highway Transport, Inc.; Intercity Transport Lines, Inc.; Inter-urban Express Corp.; Kellogg Express & Drayage Co.; Merchants Express Corp.; Oregon - Nevada-California Fast Freight; People's Express Co.; United Transfer Co.; the Valley Express Co.; also T. M. Schumacher and S. N. Ehrman who are trustees in the reorganization of the Western Pacific Railroad Co., and the Atchison. Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad.

Three of the above 19 transport companies immediately denied the charges in counter suits filed in the Superior Court, Oakland. These are: Southern Pacific, Western Pacific, and the American Railway Express, all of whom claim that they lived up to their contracts, but that Montgomery Ward has failed to pay storage charges due and totalling $26,756.

In the Portland damage suit, filed by John F. Reilly, attorney for Montgomery Ward and Co. in Portland, the mail order house asked damages of $2,855,608 which it claims to have suffered when the Ward branches were closed during a labor dispute in 1940-41. The complaint charges railroads, truck lines and express agencies with refusing to handle Ward goods during the period of Dec. 7, 1940, to July 16, 1941, necessitating the suspension of Ward's Portland business. Reilly says the Portland damage suit is entirely separate and distinct from the one filed in San Francisco by the Oakland Ward branch.—Gidlow.

Edward Berol, well known San Francisco attorney and transportation legal expert who represents several large trucking firms as well as the Truck Owners' Assn. of California, told DandW that the transportation companies sued by Montgomery Ward will fight the charges. Mr. Berol's law firm is representating Oregon - Nevada-California Fast Freight in this case. He says: "We are going to fight. We do not think the plaintiff has cause for such action." Whether the truck, rail and express companies named by Ward—numbering 56 in the Oregon suit, according to Berol—will fight the case separately or as a group, neither Attorney Berol nor anyone else could say so early in the dispute, but it is understood that some tentative conferences are being held. It will probably be several months before the case comes to trial.

A year ago, at the time of the strike which assertedly caused the losses claimed in the damage suit, Montgomery Ward made its original demand. This was refused by the transportation companies. The suits now brought in the Federal Courts are the answer of the shipper.

This case apparently has a number of angles: in addition to the "hot cargo" test issue there is the issue involved as to whether a carrier is not compelled, regardless of picket lines, to handle freight as offered. Montgomery Ward brought a complaint in the Northwest before the Interstate Commerce Commision asking for a ruling to the effect that a common carrier, by reason of its franchise, be obliged to handle any and all freight, regardless of strikes, or forfeit its operating rights. The matter has been orally argued before the Commission and on Oct. 29 the Commission announced it would give a decision in due course. Another complication is the matter of Montgomery Ward's own rights with respect to the War Labor Board.

The impression among the drayage group in San Francisco, some of whom are also involved, including Haslett Warehouse, is that the plaintiff does not have a very good case, but this group is inclined to "let the railroads fight it out" with Montgomery Ward, since they are more heavily involved. J. F. Vizzard, secretary of the Draymen's Assn. of San Francisco, said: "When a railroad company can't switch a car in, how can truckers pass a picket line?" The Western Pacific was stopped from switching goods into Montgomery Ward's siding when pickets gathered on the tracks and train engineers and firemen respected the line.

The drayage and truck owners' associations are playing no part in the cases—Gidlow.

Md. Disputes Va. on Truck Barriers

Charges that excessive taxes from Maryland truckers operating through Virginia and that the State has set up trade barriers which are slowing up delivery of war materials, have been made by W. Lee Elgin, Maryland Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

The dispute in this matter arose after Maryland truckers were stopped in Virginia and forced to pay taxes on hauling profits plus a tax on gasoline used in operating through the State, according to Walter F. Kneip, general manager of the Maryland Motor Truck Association.

The Maryland Motor Truck Assn., through Mr. Kneip, claimed that Virginia had not lived up to the agreement during the past 2 years, and had continued to assess a 2 per cent tax on truck-haul profits made by the Maryland truckers using the Virginia roads.

Not only has Virginia continued assessment of the tax, according to Mr. Kneip, but it has enacted a gasoline-tax-recapture clause, which requires all out-of-State trucks operating interstate in Virginia to pay into the Virginia treasury a sum equivalent to the tax on the amount of gasoline required to perform the Virginia mileage.

Furthermore, according to Mr. Kneip, "we now find that Virginia through the State Corporation Commission, is communicating with our carriers and notifying them that as of Jan. 1, Maryland trucks entering Virginia must register in that State and secure and carry a Virginia Identification tag at $1 per unit."—Ignace.

Va. Gross Wt. Licensing of Trucks

Beginning Jan. 1, 1943, Virginia's trucks are to be licensed on the gross weight basis. Every trucker will be forced to have his truck weighed and present this data to the licensing authorities, showing the empty weight of the vehicle and the maximum load weight which the owner intends to transport during the license year, which begins March 15, 1943. The empty and gross weights must be painted on each side of the truck in letters or figures not less than 3 in. in height.

Truck-Air Accord

An increasing harmony is coming about between the truck and air transportation groups, according to Timothy E. Colvin, vice-president of Aircraft Accessories Corp., formerly connected with Fruehauf. The prediction was made at a transportation gathering in Los Angeles, where Colvin pointed out that the experience gained now by engineering and production men in the aircraft field would later be applied in the entire transportation industry.—Gidlow.

Alger Moves Chicago Offices

Removal of the Chicago offices and terminal of the Geo. F. Alger Co., main offices 3050 Lonyo Road, Detroit, from 2256 S. Lumber St. to 320 W. 31st St. has been announced by A. C. Scott, Alger's vice-president and general manager.

This is in line with the general expansion program of the Geo. F. Alger Co. designed to provide increased facilities to serve shippers in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky with management under Chris Berns, who has been with the Alger company for 5 years.

The new terminal headquarters offer the advantages of a better location from the standpoint of main arteries of transportation as well as substantial additional operating space. The loading dock which is 200 ft. long by 150 ft. wide with 20 loading doors provide for quick and efficient freight handling.

Geo. F. Alger Co. which over a long period has established outstanding records of safe operation is now rounding out its 25th year, as one of the leading motor carriers of the Mid West. As the company has developed more national and state champion truck drivers than any other trucking firm in the United States, the slogan "Line of Champions" has been adopted.

Palletized Unit Loads

unload this car and place the supplies in stock.

Quite frequently, the use of the term "man-hours" does not give a clear picture of the operation, unless complete data as to tonnage, distance travelled, and other known factors, are given, but to encompass all this detail in an article of this length is difficult.

We have summarized this on a ton per man-hour basis, which includes the operation of unloading the car, transportation to the point of stacking, and the stacking operation.

In the handling of subsistence, the depot average, depending upon the supply being handled, will run somewhere between 1¾ to 2½ tons per man-hour—under present operation conditions—even though pallets, fork trucks, tractor-trailers, conveyors and other mechanical devices are utilized.

In the handling of subsistence on palletized unit loads, the figures show that the ton per man-hour has averaged between 4¾ and 7 tons per man-hour.

From the experience gained on this second shipment, it is felt that if the subsistence items are properly palletized, and the car is loaded with sufficient loose packages to eliminate shifting, that shipments of this class of merchandise can be made between depots, without the necessity of strapping to the pallets or bracing the cars, except with the usual doorway bracing, which would occur even in the hand-loaded car.

It is too early to formulate a definite set of figures, but it is felt that shipment of palletized unit loads will reduce the man-hours required for loading and unloading, by at least one-half, and possibly as the use of the system increases, the savings will be even greater.

Now that most depots are equipped with fork trucks and pallets, the shipment of pallet loads of subsistence on the standard 32 by 40 in. pallet is possible, thereby reducing the time required for loading and unloading the cars and other vehicles, and speeding up the operation of storing and handling this type of supply.

Trans-Canadian R.R. to Alaska

The War Dept. last month announced the completion of the survey of a proposed Trans-Canadian railroad to Alaska, to supplement the Alcan Highway, by the U. S. Army Engineers, with the cooperation of the Canadian Government.

The War Dept. announcement stated that the highway is not now deemed advisable as a military necessity, but that the findings of the study have been filed for possible wartime use or as a post-war undertaking.—Manning.

Gas Shortage Global

Reports reaching the Dept. of Commerce show that the consumption of gasoline and other motor fuels is either restricted or absolutely forbidden in almost every country in the world.

Various types of control are employed to conserve motor fuel, including the banning of all non-essential operations, requiring special operating permits, rationing, curtailed deliveries to filling stations, prohibiting sales on Sundays and holidays and limiting hours of sale. Many devices are being resorted to in order to keep essential motor vehicles on the roads.

For example, confronted with a negligible supply of motor fuels, the thrifty Swiss are mixing sewer gas with coal gas for the operation of essential public service vehicles.

While war conditions necessarily limit the operations of the Dutch fishing fleet, the Nazi occupation authorities in Holland have added to its troubles by directing that these vessels must convert their power plants to use wood and save liquid fuel.

In occupied Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania motor vehicle owners must use wood gas for fuel or not operate at all.

Germany itself is increasing the use of electric vehicles and it has been proposed to erect battery-charging stations in the principal cities to service them. The Reich is also turning to lighter vehicles to conserve fuel.

No private cars using gasoline are permitted to operate in France and its use in official cars is greatly restricted. There has been a very large increase in the number of French vehicles operated by producer-gas and alcohol from grapes is being used as motor fuel on an increasing scale.

The Irish are having their troubles along with others, special licenses being required to operate motor vehicles, with only a small number granted. Permissible gasoline rations in Eire are not available for attendance at sports events or for other non-essential driving.

The Portuguese Government has banned private motoring and commercial vehicles have been converted to use producer-gas.

In Sweden 3 out of every 5 vehicles operate with producer-gas and 38 different types of producer-gas equipment have been officially tested.

Latin America also is feeling the gasoline pinch. El Salvador is seeking to cut consumption 60 per cent under 1941 and Haiti has put in controls designed to effect a saving of 50 per cent. Cuba is exercising strict controls, with even public service vehicles ordered to cut operations 20 per cent and limit the amount of passenger baggage carried.

Chile is trying to find domestic sources of petroleum and the government has appropriated $500,000 for exploration and also has provided credits for the manufacture of producer-gas equipment for essential trucks and public service vehicles.

Argentina requires that all motor vehicles licensed to operate be equipped with speed governors to save gas and has curtailed deliveries to filling stations with a view to cutting consumption 30 per cent under last year.

Producer-gas plants are coming into use in increasing numbers throughout the world. The use of wood, charcoal, coal, peat and other gaseous solids. Norway and Eire have experimented with seaweed as a source of motor fuel.

However, shortage of metals and other required materials and the need for conserving coal and wood for more essential uses has impeded the manufacture of producer-gas plants in many countries. In these and other countries the use of animal-drawn vehicles is increasing.—Manning.

H.H.G. Groups at A.T.A. Meeting Elect New Officers

An active Household Goods Division under the wing of the A.T.A. was set up on a national footing at the recent St. Louis convention of the American Trucking Associations. There, the household goods movers went on record as desirous of having an industry grouping that will be truly representative of all phases of the business and of all groups and areas. To that end, it was decided to have the Household Goods Bureau concentrate its activities as a tariff agency.

Ernest S. Wheaton, Mayflower Warehousemen's Assn., was elected chairman. Mr. Wheaton succeeds Merle Fullerton. This chairmanship carries with it automatic election as vice-president of the A.T.A. Other officers elected were: J. L. Wilkinson, Carolina Transfer & Storage Co., Charlotte, N. C., vice-chairman; S. T. Shelburne, J. C. Shelburne Transfer & Storage Corp., Richmond, Va., treasurer; and G. B. Holman, Holman Warehouses, Rutherford, N. J., secretary.

The Household Goods Bureau also elected officers, as follows: Charles J. Armitage, Peoples Cartage & Storage, Cleveland, chairman, representing unaffiliated members; L. R. Burnham, Burnham's Van Service, Columbus, Ga., vice-chairman; E. H. Lamkin, Mayflower Warehousemen's Assn., Indianapolis, secretary; W. W. Shearer, Greyvan Lines, Chicago, treasurer; Forrest Cannon, Greyvan Lines, Chicago, assistant treasurer; and James F. Rowan, executive secretary. Directors elected, include the foregoing and Leo P. Kitchen, Jacksonville, Fla.; James Delcher, Jacksonville, Fla.; and Noble Steeves, all representing the unaffiliated members. E. S. Wheaton represents the Mayflower group. The North American Van Lines is represented by Merle Fullerton, Youngstown, Ohio, and J. F. Duncan, Cleveland. Allied Van Lines is represented by J. L. Wilkinson, Charlotte, N. C., Wilson H. Collin, Chicago, Herbert B. Holt, Los Angeles, Cal., James Barrett, Chicago, and A. V. Cresto, Kansas City, Mo. Greyvan is represented by Cannon and Shearer. Pacific Coast Women in Longshore Work

Marking the first time women have been permitted to enter the Pacific Coast longshoring field, the Pacific Coast Maritime Industry Board announced Dec. 10 that 2 gangs of longshoremen, each composed of 2 men and 6 women, have been certified for work on the San Pedro (Los Angeles Harbor) docks by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Two men were assigned to each gang of women to assist them with heavy packages and advise on the proper method of handling, carrying and balancing freight. Most of the women shiploaders are wives of longshoremen and receive the same pay as men.

Decision to hire women was reached at a joint labor-management-government meeting to counteract the critical manpower shortage in Pacific Coast ports.

Although the Los Angeles Harbor local was the first longshore union on the Pacific Coast to sanction employment of women for loading cargo, other longshore locals are reported to be investigating the possibility. —Herr.

Embargo on Los Angeles L.C.L. Exports

Accumulation of freight on the docks on San Pedro, Wilmington, East San Pedro and Terminal Island in the Los Angeles Harbor District has resulted in the placing of an embargo on l.c.l. freight for export through the port.

Exceptions to the embargo are the following:

Army-Navy freight or consignments moving under Government bills-of-lading.

Freight authorized under O.D.T. unit permits in the 99 series, which are issued only for freight moving to storage at the port which had previously been arranged.

Freight covered by A.A.R. permit, and freight covered by O.D.T. unit permit validated by A.A.R., which are issued to cover l.c.l shipments of 2,240 lbs. or more destined to points in American republics.—Herr.

Ruling on Boston Wharfage Charges

The U. S. Maritime Commission has ruled that the practice of Boston Tidewater Terminal, Inc., of charging wharfage at the Army Base Terminal in Boston on freight when the movement is other than by rail and making no charge on railroad freight is unreasonable in violation of Section 17 of the Shipping Act. The terminal will be allowed 60 days within which to establish a "reasonable charge" on railroad freight.—Manning.

Would Draft as Workers Men Not Suited for Army

A recommendation that drafted men not found finally suitable for induction into the armed forces be inducted into a work army to help relieve San Francisco's waterfront's acute manpower situation, was made in the form of a resolution last month by the port facilities committee of the San Francisco Marine Exchange and sent to Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt in Washington.

The resolution was explained by Roger D. Lapham, chairman of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., who said that this was the biggest problem of the day and that it should be attacked by compulsory methods authorized by Congress, since "those in war industry are just as necessary to winning the war as those in the front lines and I don't care what uniform a man is in, whether it be khaki, overalls, or whether he wears an eyeshade like some of us. All our efforts are important." Mr. Lapham said the shortage of manpower on the Pacific Coast is more acute than elsewhere in the country and recommended a "unified command" for all uniforms.

The Marine Exchange also recommended the elimination of the 40-hr. week and adoption of labor-saving devices. Those discussing the subject pointed out that while 8 hrs. is a long enough work period for longshore work, certain other longshore employes, such as policemen, who also work only 8 hrs., might be used from 2 to 4 hrs. extra in helping out the longshore labor situation; and that the use of labor-saving devices formerly objected to by unions would also help.

S. M. Haslett, Jr., of Haslett Warehouse Co., stated that the warehouses are feeling the manpower shortage more and more seriously. J. W. Howell, also of Haslett, is acting on a manpower committee in San Francisco which serves in an advisory capacity to the Government's local manpower body.

The suggestion for bringing Eastern longshore workers to Pacific Coast ports was not regarded with enthusiasm, because of the fact that Westerners are C.I.O. affiliates while Easterners belong to the A. F. of L., all of which might result in jurisdictional disputes.

Steamship operators have been authorized to load and discharge on a 24-hr. schedule. At the same time the Maritime Industry Board has opened its registration list to allcomers and has ordered an increase in the maximum slingload for cement from 22 to 30 sacks. —Gidlow.

Pacific Coast Ship Agents Organized

The Pacific Coast Agents and General Agents Assn. was formed in December with charter memberships held by representatives of 22 steamship lines active in West Coast ports.

Coastwise in scope, the function of the new group will be to deal with operating, traffic and other problems of agents and general agents arising "in connection with matters concerning the War Shipping Administration, and other parties, and to endeavor as a group to solve said problems to the satisfaction of all concerned." The association will have no jurisdiction over rates.

The program of the organization will be handled through 4 departmental committees which will handle matters concerning operations, accounting, traffic-berth-sub-agents, and insurance-claims-legal matters. —Herr.

Air Cargo Research at Wayne

specific purpose in evaluating air cargo transportation. However, the grant, according to Evans, is a continuing endowment, that will be available from year to year until its usefulness has been terminated.

Pogue Visions Effect of Lower Air Cargo Rates

L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, in an address before the University Club of New York, Dec. 12, predicted extensive carriage of air cargo after the war and described the present growth in this type of transportation service as amazing.

"Present air cargo rates are between 80 and 90 cents a ton-mile, several times rail express rates," he stated. "What will happen when air cargo rates hover or equal those of rail express?" he questioned. "Measure the value of time, of speed in transportation. Compute the many millions of dollars which may be saved for business when the speed of air transportation has reduced the necessity for large stock inventories. When these and other now-indeterminable values are measured, it will be possible to tell something definite of the volume of cargo which will be diverted from other forms of transportation when the rates are cut in half and then again cut in half," was his answer.

Mr. Pogue then pointed out that diversion of half the high-grade cargo now transported by rails and trucks would require a fleet of about 25,000 or 30,000 planes. He visioned air cargo service creating new articles of commerce such as perishables that formerly held no distant markets because even refrigerated car service couldn't handle it.

He also visioned billions of ton-miles developed by air cargo alone. He brought out that systems for the pickup of cargo with planes in flight had been developed and would be further developed; he also discussed the use of parachutes for delivery of freight under special conditions and the development of helicopters for use on small landing fields.

In the post war period, he thought, more people than ever will be familiar with the uses and advantages of air cargo and that the rapidly increasing demand for same will be adequately handled by new planes. He concluded by stating that though there will be losses of traffic to ground transportation, this slack will be compensated for by the stimulus which air cargo will give to the national and world economy."

Air Cargo Rights Sought by Denver Truck Line

The Denver-Chicago Trucking Co., Inc., Denver, Colo., has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to grant it a certificate authorizing operation as a scheduled air carrier of property only, between Chicago and Los Angeles, and Seattle, via Denver and Salt Lake City. This application has been assigned docket No. 810. In its application, the truck line asserted that coordinated plane-truck service is required at present and that the line operates as a motor common carrier of property in interstate commerce under certificates granted by the I.C.C. between Chicago and Denver, between St. Louis and Denver, between Denver and Los Angeles, and between Denver and Seattle. The line is now transporting freight at the rate of 200,000,000 lbs. annually with 233 pieces of equipment.

The air service would be auxiliary and supplemental to the motor carrier service; the line would purchase planes when present restrictions are lifted and in the meantime will experiment with the use of large freight containers made of a plastic or light metal to be loaded with l.c.l. cargo which will be picked up at terminal points by truck and then placed in the containers. The containers, in the case of volume shipments, will be placed at the shippers' platforms and then hauled by truck to the airport.

United Comes to Rescue of Flame-swept Plant

The air cargo service of United Air Lines played an important part in restoring telephone service following a disastrous fire at the Basic Magnesium plant in Las Vegas, Nev., C. P. Graddick, director of express, mail and freight for United, revealed recently. Among equipment destroyed when flames swept the central administration building of the big war production plant was the master switchboard through which contact was maintained with units of the plant scattered over hundreds of acres. Interruption of communications meant incalculable loss of man-hours and money.

At the Chicago plant of Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co., it happened that a large board, just completed, was ready for shipment on an order intended for installation at Boulder City. Rush calls went through to have the board transferred to the magnesium plant and, since ordinary transportation would have meant fully a week's delay in restoring the essential telephone service, United Air Lines was called on to meet the emergency.

Hastily detaching one of their mainliners from United's regular passenger service, its 21 seats were removed, Graddick said, and the crated parts of the disassembled switchboard, weighing 4,300 lbs. were securely strapped into the plane. Ten hours after leaving Chicago's Municipal Airport on the 1,700-mile trip, the liner landed at Las Vegas. The fire had broken out Friday night and before noon on Monday the interplant telephone service was again smoothly operating.—Slawson.

According to announcement of T. M. Girdler, chairman of the board of directors of the Consolidated Aircraft Corp., Dec. 21, William B. Stout, Detroit aircraft engineer, has been appointed full-time designer for the firm. The entire Stout Engineering Laboratories in Detroit has been absorbed by Consolidated and will continue its creative research work in improving aircraft and allied products and in developing new product ideas.

Patterson Sees Air Cargo Helping Land Transport

In an address before the National Industrial Conference in New York, Nov. 24, W. A. Patterson, president of the United Air Lines, stated that post war development of air freight transport will augment surface transportation rather than retard it. He predicted that the airlines will carry all of the first class mail along with a large share of express packages. Railroads, he added, will achieve gains in freight traffic created by the airplane, which will more than offset their loss of passenger business to the airlines.

Four conditions will have to be met in order to justify shipment of freight by air, he declared: (1) An emergency has to be met; (2) an opportunity must exist for a substantial saving in warehousing and inventory costs ; (3) commodities must have a value per pound sufficiently high to make possible worthwhile savings in financial and insurance costs; and (4) surface transport must be inadequate or non-existent.

He declared that after the war there will be a tremendous progress in domestic and world trade. The airplane's future will be great. Actually, he considered, the business of air cargo will be a sales department for the whole transportation industry, promoting traffic that will redound to the benefit of all forms of carriers, with each type fulfilling these requirements in our future economy peculiar to its own inherent characteristics.

FROM The Capital

To Survey Labor Shortage Situation in 25 Cities

Special labor-management committees will be appointed in 25 "critical" cities to survey labor shortages and potential labor reservoirs in the motor transport industry, Otto S. Beyer, Director of the Transport Personnel Division, Office of Defense Transportation, announced Dec. 17.

The surveys were recommended at the second of a series of monthly meetings between the Labor-Management Committee of the for-hire motor transport industry and officials of the O.D.T.

Cities named by the committee as "critical," because of truck driver shortages are: Akron, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Denver, Detroit, Hartford, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Louisville, Minneapolis, New York, Oakland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, (Ore.), St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Diego, San Francisco, and Seattle.

Three representatives of the trucking companies in each city and 3 from the city locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters will be named by their principals to each of the special committees. Committee members may call upon local War Manpower Commission representatives for any aid and advice needed, Mr. Beyer said.

Objective of the survey will be to devise ways and means completely to utilize truck driver manpower sources within each city so as to avoid among other things, bringing new people into these critical localities where housing and other facilities already are overburdened.

As an example, the committee pointed to cities which allowed municipal employes who work only 40 hrs. a week, or less, to drive essential local and over-the-road trucks on their off hours or off days.

All local committees will be requested to finish their surveys and send in reports in time for consideration by ODT officials and the National Labor-Management Committee at the next monthly meeting, to be held in Washington Tuesday, Jan. 19, 1943.

It is hoped that the work of these local committees will reduce the necessity for recruiting an estimated 65,000 new workers who will be needed in the motor transport industry by June of 1943 unless methods can be found to utilize present employes more effectively, Mr. Beyer said.

At a meeting Dec. 16, the committee also considered the joint Labor-Management truck conservation program which was recommended at the previous meeting. The program was discussed briefly on Dec. 17, from 10:30 to 10:45 p.m., EWT, over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Joseph B. Eastman, ODT Director; Dave Beck, vice-president of the Teamsters' Brotherhood; Ted V. Rodgers, president of the American Trucking Associations, and Mr. Beyer spoke.

Members of the Labor-Management Committee present were:

Representing labor: Dave Beck, Fred. A. Tobin, Frank Brewster, Frank Gillespie, John Rohrick, James Hoffa, and Robert Borden. Representing management; Jack Altwater, Carl Ozee, Leland James, Ted V. Rodgers, C. G. Morgan, Jr., John V. Lawrence, Charles P. Clark and Ray Mason. In addition to Mr. Beyer, the ODT was represented by John L. Rogers, Director of the Division of Motor Transport, and E. M. Fitch and Phil Trezise, of the Division of Transport Personnel.

Transport Tax Forms Being Prepared

Pending the release of official regulations covering the new tax bill, the Office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue has furnished collectors with a memorandum setting forth certain information regarding the application of the tax on the transportation of property.

The following points are highlighted in the memorandum:

Section 3475 of the Internal Revenue Code as added by section 620 of the Revenue Act of 1942, imposes upon the amount paid within the United States after Dec. 1, 1942, for the transportation, on and after that date, of property by rail, motor vehicle, water, or air from one point in the United States to another, a tax equal to 3 per cent of the amount so paid except, that, in case of coal, the rate of tax shall be 4 per cent per short ton (2,000 lbs.).

The tax applies only to amounts paid on and after Dec. 2, 1942, to a person engaged in the business of transporting property for hire (including amounts paid to a freight forwarder, express company, or similar person) for transportation which originated on or after Dec. 1, 1942. The tax is payable by the person making the taxable transportation payment and is collectible by the person receiving such payment.

The term "person engaged in the business of transporting property for hire" includes common carriers, contract carriers, local moving and drayage concerns, and any other person rendering transportation for hire, wholly or in part, by rail, motor vehicle, water or air. In general, where the delivery activities of a wholesale or retail merchant are carried on with his own trucks and are merely incidental to his business of selling merchandise, the merchant is not regarded as being a "person engaged in the business of transporting property for hire" even though a separate charge for the delivery is made to the customer.

The term "transportation" means the movement of property by a person engaged in the business of transporting property for hire, including interstate, intra-state, and intra-city and other local movements and all services and facilities rendered, furnished, or used in connection therewith. It includes receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration, icing, storage, demurrage, towage, lighterage, trimming of cargo in vessels, wharfage, handling of property transported, feeding and watering livestock, and all other incidental services and facilities.

The tax does not apply to the amount paid for the transportation of property:

When the transportation originated prior to the first moment of

Dec. 1, 1942; when paid prior to Dec. 2, 1942, regardless of when the transportation occurs; when paid by a freight forwarder, express company, or similar person for transportation with respect to which the tax is payable to such freight forwarder, express company, or similar person; when paid for the transportation of property in course of exportation to a foreign country or shipment to a possession of the United States and actually so exported or shipped; when paid directly to the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof; or, when paid directly to a carrier by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof or by a State or political subdivision of a State.

As indicated above, amounts paid by the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof or by a State or political subdivision of a State are exempt from tax only when the payment is made directly to the carrier by the government agency. Transportation charges not paid directly to the carrier (for example, charges paid by Government contractors operating on a cost-plus-fixed-fee or other basis) are subject to the tax. The fact that in such a case the contractor may be reimbursed for the transportation charge paid will not affect the tax liability. No proof of exemption will be required in any case where a shipment is made under a Government bill of lading, Standard Form, 1058A, or where the transportation charge is paid directly by the government agency entitled to exemption.

Not later than Jan. 30, 1943, or within 60 days after first engaging in the business of transporting property for hire by rail, motor vehicle, water or air, every person so engaged shall file an application for registry on Form 800A with the collector for the district in which is located his principal place of business, or, if he has no principal place of business in the United States, then with the Collector of Internal Revenue, Baltimore, Md. The collector receiving an application for registry will issue a certificate of registry on Form 800A which must be posted in the registered place of business. Copies of Form 800A may be procured from collectors of internal Revenue.

Monthly returns of the transportation tax will be filed on Form 727 (Revised). The return, accompanied by remittance of the tax, must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the principal place of the person required to file the return is located, or if he has no principal place of business in the United States, with the Collector at Baltimore on or before the last day of the month following the month in which it is made. The first return and payment of the tax will be due not later than Jan. 31, 1943. Form 727 "Revised" is being printed and will be available at Offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue well in advance of the due date.

Beginning Dec. 2, 1942, carriers should have proceeded to make collections of the tax from the shippers or other persons paying the transportation charges. Amounts so collected constitute a trust fund for the benefit of the United States and such amounts should be retained by the carrier until the return is filed.—Manning.

Labor Board on Wages and Salaries

General Orders 14, 15 and 16, together with new General Order 4-B and Interpretation No. 1 to General Order No. 6, have been issued.

General Order No. 14, issued by the Board of Nov. 25, outlines the procedure to be followed by the Secretary of War in exercising the power to rule upon all wage and salary adjustments of the more than one million civilian employees in the United States and Alaska, of the War Dept., Army Exchange Services, and governemnt owned privately operated facilities of the War Dept.

General Order No. 15 empowers impartial chairmen, umpires, or arbitrators to fix rates for new jobs without prior Board approval, if they have that duty under a bonda fide collective bargaining agreement.

General Order No. 16 allows employers to make wage or salary adjustments to equalize the wages of women with those of men for comparable quality and quantity of work without prior Board approval.

General Order No. 4-B further defines General Order No. 4 which exempts employers of not more than 8 individuals by stating that:

1. The time to determine the total number of employes is when the employer puts the adjustment into effect or agrees to it.
2. No employer can make adjustments under this exemption for more than a total of 8 individuals in the year following Oct. 3, 1942, in the case of wages, or Oct. 27, 1942, in the case of salaries.

Interpretation No. 1 to General Order No. 6 grants authority to the Wage and Hour Division local offices to make final rulings, except in unusual cases, on the question of whether the rate for a new job classification in existing plants is fixed "at a level not exceeding that which prevails for similar classifications within the area," and, therefore, does not need approval of the War Labor Board.

A.T.A. Urges Rail Pact—Wants Mileage Retained

Coordination of rail and truck transport in the interest of the war effort is desirable, the industry truck-rail committee of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., reported to the group's executive committee on Dec. 10. It, however, went on record as opposed to any limitation of truck-hauls, that is, the O.D.T.'s proposed limiting of cargo hauling over the road to 300 miles with traffic then diverted to the railroads.

300-Mile Truck Limit in Rail Coordination

A tentative draft of a new rail-truck coordination order by O.D.T. contains provisions for the diversion of truck cargo to the railroads after it has been hauled 300 miles and a prohibition against the railroads accepting l.c.l. freight for shipment where the rail mileage between point of origin and point of destination is less than 100 miles, except under certain specified conditions. Carload shipments by rail would be prohibited, except under designated conditions, to hauls of less than 50 miles or within municipalities or from them to points considered commercially a part of such municipalities.

Exceptions to the above include agricultural commodities or any commercial or civilian traffic. The exceptions are confined to Army, Navy, Coast Guard, Marine Corps, Lend-Lease, Maritime Commission, implements and parts of implements of war, furniture (uncrated) or household goods, repair service, essential telephone, telegraph, radio, electric light and power, gas and water utility, pipe line, railroads and street railway, health and public service and emergency medical supply and public health equipment traffic, and where authorized by general or special permit of the O.D.T.

The order would specially provide that traffice moving in excess of 300 miles that would have to be diverted from common carrier truck to railway, would also be subject to O.D.T.18, the maximum loading order, but presumably all motor carrier cargo would be subject to the same requirements, as there is no exemption for contract or private truck carriers.

On the short-haul traffic to move by common carrier truck, the provision is made for compensation on a truck-mile basis. But in all cases of forced diversions, either from rail to truck or truck to rail, the agency to which the traffic is diverted would be liable for loss, or damage only to the agency diverting the traffic and not to the owner of the cargo lost or damaged.

The proposed order is not to be considered as a tire or truck conservation measure, as have other O.D.T. truck orders, but an emergency measure to conserve total transportation facilities.

Some protest has been made at various meetings against the measure. One comment is that the O.D.T. first has no authority, and second, it is compelling the railroads to violate the established law of the land in ordering joint freight rates when its authority is exclusively advisory.

Further comment on the measure states, "Unless it is believed that the principal shortage predicted will be in motor trucks, which is contrary to the information O.D.T. has released, to the effect that major shortages are expected in motive power, it is difficult to see how the diversion of a tremendous volume of long-haul truck traffic to the already over-burdened railroads will conserve transportation."

The measure provides that a common motor carrier may at any time disregard the routing specified in the bill of lading of a shipment and divert such shipment to a railroad. It further provides that whenever such a diversion is made, the railroad "shall transport such shipment as the agent of the diverting common carrier, and via such traffic routes as it may suggest, but pursuant to the rates, rules and regulations upon the bill of lading of such motor carrier." Except as may otherwise be agreed upon between the carriers involved, "or as prescribed by competent Federal or State authority, the railroad to which such shipments are diverted shall receive as compensation for that part of the transportation service . . . cents per net ton-mile, minimum weight . . . pounds, minimum charge. . . ."

In regard to the tariff question, one authority states that the proposed order undertakes to change existing freight rates. He states further, "Truckers have no rates properly applicable to shipments handled in the manner contemplated by the O.D.T. The railroads, on the other hand, do have very definite rates covering the services they would be called upon to perform if the O.D.T. has its way. Since the O.D.T. would set aside the latter rates and substitute other schedules, agreed to by motor carrier and the railroads or arbitrarily decided upon by the Federal agency, it is obvious that unauthorized power has been assumed under the cloak of war necessity.

"As every shipper knows, there is relatively little difference between railroad and motor carrier freight rates. But the normal truckload is 20,000 lbs., whereas few railroad carload rates are based on less than 30,000 lbs. Most carloads are 40,000 lbs. In effect, then the O.D.T. order would fix railroad rates for diverted freight on a basis lower than the railroad's own rates for similar service.

"For example, if a trucker diverted a full truckload of 20,000 lbs. to a railroad, it would earn nothing more than the l.c.l. rate. But the O.D.T.'s plan calls for the trucker and the railroad either to agree on the rate to apply in such case, or for the railroad to accept a rate prescribed by a Federal or State authority. Such an agreed rate, obviously would not be the same as the rate fixed in the railroad tariff.

"If the O.D.T. insists upon going through with its plan, the railroads will have the choice of violating statutory provisions of long standing, probably to their own post war discomfiture, or of seeking a restraining order from the courts."

S.O.S. Transport Zone Consolidation

Field agencies of the Transportation Corps, Services of Supply, have been consolidated into Transportation Zones, corresponding to the 9 Service Commands, each subdivided into transportation districts, the War Dept. announced in December.

Zone and District Transportation officers will exercise general supervision over all transportation matters which are not part of the responsibility of Defense Commands, Service Commands, or Commanders of other installations.

Duties of Zone and District Transportation officers will include the administration of War Dept. regulating stations, freight consolidating stations, freight distributing agencies, holding and reconsignment points, and traffic functions at the ports not assigned to the ports of embarkation. These officers are responsible also for maintaining liaison with local traffic organizations, transportation companies, transportation associations, and local transportation representatives of other government agencies.

Also, Zone and District Transportation officers have the responsibility for preventing the improper use of ground storage; for assuring expeditious, and orderly unloading and release of railway cars, and the expediting of the movement of War Dept. and Lend-Lease supplies.

Among the other duties of these officers is that of assuring necessary rail and highway transportation facilities for the movement of personnel and supplies in which the War Department is directly or indirectly interested. They are responsible for receiving and assembling less-than-carload or truckload freight for movement in carloads, and adopting measures to prevent traffic congestion in movements of Lend-Lease or War Dept. supplies.

Zone and District Transportation officers also are charged with local procurement activities, and providing assistance to commanders of military installations on transportation matters under their control. A Zone Transportation officer, upon request of the Commanding General of a Service Command, will act as an additional member of his staff for transportation matters under his control.

Below is a list of the Transportation Zones established, the Zone Transportation officers assigned to them, territorial assignments, and headquarters.

District transportation offices will be established initially at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Norfolk, Charleston, Mobile, New Orleans, Memphis, Detroit, St. Louis, San Antonio, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland (Ore.), and Seattle. —Manning.

FROM THE LEGAL VIEWPOINT

By Leo T. Parker, Legal Editor

Fireproof Bldg. Claim and Negligence

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: We advertise a fireproof warehouse, but recently our warehouse partly burned and damaged certain merchandise. Certain owners contend that we are liable although the fire did not start from our negligence. What is our responsibility?—Storage & Transfer.

Answer: The law is that all warehousemen should avoid making any false or untrue statements, particularly with respect to the manner in which the goods will be safeguarded or the locality or building in which the goods will be stored.

It is well established law that a warehouseman ordinarily is not liable for loss or destruction of stored goods, unless the evidence indicates that the warehouseman or his employes were negligent. However, where a warehouseman makes any statement which induces a prospective customer to store goods and later the goods are destroyed because such statement was false, then the owner of the goods is entitled to recover from the warehouseman although the latter was not negligent in effecting the loss.

For illustration, in Rosenblatt V John F. Ivory Storage Co., 247 N. W. 733, a warehouseman made certain statements which a prospective customer believed indicated that the warehouse was fireproof. Afterward the warehouse burned and the goods were destroyed without negligence on the part of the warehouseman.

The higher court held the warehouseman liable.

Also, in another leading case, Mortimer V Otto, 206 N. Y. 89, a warehouseman agreed to store household goods in a designated building, but in violation of that agreement stored the articles in another building which, with the goods, was destroyed by fire. The warehouseman was held liable.

Holder of Mdse. Receipt Has Prior Lien

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: One of our employes was intrusted with merchandise and he stored it in a warehouse. He took the negotiable warehouse receipts and placed them with a bank as collateral. Can we recover the merchandise?—Acme Storage Co.

Answer: Any person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated acquires the same legal title to the goods as the person, negotiating the receipt to him, had the legal right to convey to a purchaser. Also, the person to whom a negotiable receipt was negotiated has as good a title to the goods as the depositor or person, to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt, had ability to convey to any purchaser in good faith.

Another important point of law is that the validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was deprived of the possession of the same by loss, theft, fraud, accident, mistake, duress or conversion, providing the person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated paid value therefor in good faith and without notice of the breach of duty, or loss, theft, fraud, accident, mistake, duress or conversion.

Therefore, in view of this established law relating to negotiable warehouse receipts, it is well settled that where the owner of merchandise intrusts it with a person and the latter places it in a warehouse and obtains negotiable warehouse receipts therefor and subsequently pledges them as collateral security for a promissory note or notes, the title of the money lender to such merchandise is superior to that of the true owner.

See Scott Company v. Peoples Bank, 30 N.E. (2nd) 691. Here a company contracted to consign to a wholesaler certain merchandise for purposes of sale. The agreement contained a provision to the effect that the company was to be paid as the goods were sold. Under the terms of the agreement, title to the consigned merchandise was to remain and be vested solely and exclusively in the company until the consigned merchandise was sold, and the merchandise was at all times to be held by the wholesaler subject to the orders, direction and control of the company.

The merchandise was shipped to the wholesaler who placed it in storage with a warehouseman and for the merchandise negotiable warehouse receipts were issued to the wholesaler. Soon afterward the latter borrowed money from a bank and gave the bank a note secured by the warehouse receipts. In other words, as collateral security the wholesaler pledged the warehouse receipts which had been issued to him upon the deposit of the consigned merchandise in the warehouse.

The legal question arose whether the company, the true and legal owner of the merchandise, could recover possession of same from the bank. It is important to know that the higher court held that the bank had the prior lien and was entitled to keep or sell the merchandise to secure the amount due on the note.

Can Compel Payment of Full Year's Rental

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: We made a deal with a distributor to handle a minimum quantity of storage business on a yearly payment basis, payable monthly. This arrangement continued for 4 yrs. Some months the distributor paid more than the agreed minimum monthly charges, but never paid less than the minimum. After going through 3 mos. of the 5th yr., the distributor transferred his business to another warehouse company. We contend that he should pay something for the last 9 mos. of his contract. He said that he would pay us nothing because we rendered no services during the last 9 mos. period. Can we compel him to pay any money to us?—Safe Storage & Transfer.

Answer: It is well established law that where parties contract on a yearly basis and after the first year the contract either is renewed or nothing is said but the parties start the second year, the contract for the second year is effective and controlled by the terms of the first year contract. The same law is effective for contracts of any and all durations. For illustration, where a person rents from month to month he is liable for payment for rent for a full month if he vacates after midnight of the last day of monthly rental period. Also, if a person is hired for a year and before the second year is completed the employe is discharged he can recover salary for the remainder of the year. The same law is effective with respect to storage contracts.

For your information, a modern higher court recently held that a month-to-month storage contract entitles the warehouseman to receive payment for a full month's storage, although goods are removed from the warehouse before expiration of the month. See Crooks Terminal Warehouse v. U. S., 92 Ct. Cl. 401. Here a warehouseman entered into a contract with a customer by which the warehouseman agreed to store certain merchandise on the month-to-month basis. The customer shipped goods into the warehouse. Some shipments remained in the warehouse for exactly one or more months, and other merchandise was removed after it had been in storage only a few days.

Legal controversy developed over payment of the storage charges on goods not left in the warehouse for a full month.

The customer contended that the term month-to-month, as used in the contract, did not guarantee full monthly payments for each batch of merchandise delivered into the warehouse, particularly since some lots only remained in the warehouse a few days.

However, the court held the warehouseman entitled to recover payment for a full month on each lot although it had remained in storage only a few doys.

Therefore, you can compel the customer to pay the full value of the storage minimum monthly charges for the remainder of the year.

Claim Can Be Collected on Lower Value

LEGAL EDITOR, DandW: Assume that a customer deposits for storage a fur coat worth $1,000 but declared a valuation of only $100 to reduce payments of storage rates. If the coat is lost through negligence of the warehouseman, can the latter be held liable for full value of the coat to an insurance company which issued an all-risk fur floater policy?"—Security Storage Co.

Answer: The insurance company would under ordinary circumstances have no greater rights than the customer. However, the situation may be such, as where the warehouseman was informed of the true value, knew that the coat was insured at full valuation, and failed to use ordinary care to safeguard the coat, and result in the warehouseman being liable to the insurance company where the customer subrogates the claim to the insurance company.

It is well known law that a warehouseman cannot relieve himself, by contract, from liability for lost, damaged or injured stored goods if the contract is intended to relieve the warehouseman for his negligence. But if the customer fails to declare the full valuation of goods; the warehouseman is not informed of the true valuation; the customer signs a contract to this effect; the warehouseman offers to charge a higher storage rate for greater valuation protection; and the goods are destroyed under favorable conditions with respect to the warehouseman, it is my opinion that the insurance company cannot recover more than the declared value, although the customer subrogates his claim to the company.

This Month's Important Decisions

Wages and Interstate Commerce

IT is well known that employers engaged in the production of goods for interstate commerce are obligated by the Fair Labor Standards Act to pay certain specified wages to employes. Usually, an important question is: What employes are included in this Federal law?

It is important to know that recently a higher court held that although an employer is engaged in interestate commerce this fact does not mean that he must pay all employes the minimum wages specified by the Federal law. In other words, only employes actually engaged in the production of goods for interestate commerce are entitled to such payment.

For illustration, in Walnut Transfer and Storage Co. v. Arnold, 21 S.E. (2d) 461, it was shown that an employe sued the Walnut Transfer & Storage Co. to recover unpaid minimum wages on the grounds that the storage company was engaged in interstate commerce because it transported goods from one State into other States. However, it is interesting to know that the higher court refused to hold the employer liable for payment under the Federal Act because the employe failed to prove that his duties involved interstate commerce. This court said:

"We think that the coverage as described in the Fair Labor Standards Act does not deal in a blanket way with industries as a whole. Thus, in 206 it is provided that every employer shall pay the statutory minimum wage to 'each of his employes who is engaged in commerce.' It thus becomes an individual matter as to the nature of the employment of the particular employe. Some employers in a given industry may not be subject to the act at all; other employers in the industry may be subject to the act in respect to some of their employes, and not others; still other employers in the industry may be subject to the act in respect to all of their employes, except those specifically exempted. See Foster v. National Biscuit Co., D.C., 31 F.Supp. 552, 533; Gates v. Graham Co., D.C., 31 F.Supp. 854; Bagby v. Cleveland Wrecking Co., D.C., 28 F.Supp. 271; Baggett v. Henry Fischer Packing Co., D.C., 37 F.Supp. 670; Berger v. Clouser, D.C., 36 F.Supp. 168; Fleming v. Arsenal Bldg. Corp., D.C., 38 F.Supp. 207, 212."

Percentage of Interstate Business Not Important

ACCORDING to decisions rendered by recent higher courts, an employer who is engaged in one branch of his business exclusively in interstate commerce must pay all employes in this particular branch the wages specified in the Fair Labor Standards Act. And this is so, although only a small percentage of the employer's business relates to interstate commerce.

It is important to know that late higher courts have held that the term "commerce", as used in the act, is defined to mean "trade, commerce, transportation, transmission, or communication among the several States or from any State to any place outside thereof." In the same section of definitions, it is further declared that for the purposes of the act "an employe shall be deemed to have been engaged in the production of goods if such employe was employed in producing, manufacturing, mining, handling, transporting, or in any other manner working on such goods, or in any process or occupation necessary to the production thereof, in any State."

For example, in Niehaus v. Joseph Greenspon's Son Pipe Corp., 164 S.W. (2) 180, is was disclosed that a night watchman sued his employer to recover an unpaid balance allegedly due him after deducting the compensation actually paid him from the total amount he was entitled to receive at the statutory minimum wage of 25 cents an hour with time and a half for the hours employed in excess of 44 hrs. a week. He alleged that his employer owed him, as this difference, the amount of $365, as based upon the Federal law known as the Fair Labor Standards Act.

During the trial the night watchman proved that his employer was engaged in a manufacturing business and that 25% of his products were shipped in interstate commerce. In holding in favor of the employe, the court said:

"Under the facts of the present case, the plaintiff was 'engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce' within the scope and application of the act."

Original Package Goods Not Taxable

CONSIDERABLE discussion has arisen from time to time whether goods, shipped from another State and stored in a warehouse for distribution to purchasers in various other States, are subject to taxation of the State in which the warehouse is situated. It is important to know that a recent higher court held that such goods are not subject to State taxation.

For example, in Dant v. Board of Supervisors, 128 Pac. (2d) 389, it was disclosed that a State law provides that a foreign corporation may not maintain a suit in any court upon any intrastate business, unless it has filed with the secretary of State a certified copy of its articles of incorporation and also filed a certified copy thereof in the office of the county clerk of the county where its principal place of business in this State is located.

A corporation having its offices in another State shipped merchandise into California where it was unloaded and stored in the warehouse. The merchandise was shipped in individual pieces and not packed nor in any manner bundled together. Each shipment was filed separately and kept to itself, and the same were sold to customers outside the State of California. When the merchandise was sold, the company directed the warehousemen to make shipment to the purchaser and the corporation paid the cost of loading and freight. The corporation never maintained an office in California, its principal office being located in Portland, Ore.

The county of Los Angeles assessed a tax against the goods remaining in the warehouse. The legal question arose whether the corporation could maintain a suit in the State. Another legal question presented the court was: Are stored goods that were shipped into California and stored in a warehouse, subject to a tax of the State where a portion of the goods were sold by a non-resident owner (who does not maintain an office in the State of California) to customers outside of the State of California?

In answer to the last question, the court held:

"This question must be answered in the negative and is governed by the following pertinent rules of law: The law is settled that a State or a subdivision thereof may not constitutionally levy a tax upon a thing during the time it retains its character as an import and remains the property of an importer in a warehouse in the original form or package in which it was imported. The fact that a portion of shipments of goods is sold or offered for sale, leaving the remainder intact in their original packages does not make the balance subject to state taxation."

Also, the court held that the corporation was not transacting interstate business, and said:

"Did the foreign corporation, which had not recorded with the secretary of State and county clerk certified copies of its articles of incorporation have the right to maintain the present action? This question must be answered in the affirmative."

Notwithstanding the decision rendered by this higher court, it must be realized that this law is applicable exclusively to goods whose original package was not broken while remaining in the State in which the warehouse is located.

Chattel Mortgage Held Void

IT is well established law that a properly recorded chattel mortgage, which conforms with valid laws, may be prior to a warehouseman's lien. Therefore, if a warehouseman stores goods not knowing that the goods are covered by a properly recorded valid mortage, such warehouseman cannot sell the goods to recover payment for his services until the amount due on the mortgage is satisfied. However, if for any reason the mortgage is void, the warehouseman holds the first and prior lien.

It is important to know that a chattel mortgage is void which in any detail does not conform with requirements of State laws.

For example, in Klaucke v. Bands, 28 Atl. (2d) 206, New Jersey, it was disclosed that a State law provides that where there is no change of possession of mortgaged goods, the mortgage must have annexed to it an affidavit by the holder of the mortgage, his agent or attorney, stating the consideration of such mortgage and, as nearly as possible, the amount due and to become due thereon.

A mortgage was properly executed and contained a clause that in case of default the mortgagor was to pay a counsel fee of $100. An affidavit was annexed and fixed to the mortgage and it contained all other legal requirements, except that the clause was omitted, which obligated the mortgagor, in case of default, to pay a counsel fee of $100. In view of this omission, the higher court held the chattel mortgage to be void. This court said:

"There is omitted the provision that the mortgagor agreed to pay a counsel fee of $100, in case of default. The mortgage is hereby held to be void."

VANS or VAN TRAILERS

WE'LL BE HERE WHEN IT'S OVER

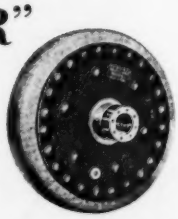

To America today, steel is more vital for victory than custom-built Vans and Van Trailers. An aroused nation is demanding "cold steel" for our enemies above "all steel" for Vans and Van Trailers. HERMAN BODY COMPANY is proud to be called upon to assist in America's Victory Program. We've enlisted for the duration—making equipment for Uncle Sam.

But we'll be HERE when it's over . . . and though we can't build additional Vans and Van Trailers at the present—we can think about building them better. The Herman Designing Department will be maintained to plan for peace . . . to, some day, introduce a new and better HERMAN.

When Industry's "On the March"

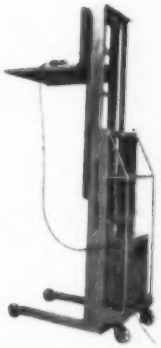

● Industry keyed up to war does its marching on wheels. Both transportation and warehousing fall in line. They turn to every application of casters and trucks which splits a second or frees an able-bodied man.

The point to keep in mind, then, is that the hauling units selected really DO save time and energy—instead of, after a little while, wasting it in breakdowns, slow swiveling, excess "play" from worn parts, or light loads to spare sluggish casters.

Make sure of the long liveliness of an engineered industrial caster. Insist on Service, with a capital "S".

LeverLift—Hydraulic lifting and lowering by simple, powerful mechanism. Four models: 2500, 3500, 5000 and 6000 lbs. capacity. Largest requires only about 30 lbs. effort. Front wheel steer by ball-bearing turntable for easy use in crowded areas. Platform permits use without skids. All welded.

Electric Hydraulic Lifters — An 8-ft. lift of a two thousand pound load by a powerful, electrically-operated hydraulic mechanism on a portable unit. It's the answer to many congested storage spaces. Stacks rapidly. Easily shifted and operated. Two widths, three lengths. Also 1000 lb. capacity.

ForgeWeld — The indestructible drop-forged caster, ideal for replacements. Hyatt bearing wheel and SAE 1045 Steel axle.

The large truck is the famous Service Push-E-Z and the wagon type is known as Pull-E-Z—husky hauling units built like battleships.

Warehouse Truck —Large, rugged but surprisingly easy to handle. Four sizes. Optional wheels. Choice of plain bearings or Hyatt roller bearing axles.

To Draft Coordinated Wartime Legislative Program

Some 400 officials from all parts of the country are scheduled to meet in Baltimore in January to draft a coordinated wartime legislative program for the 48 States. The sessions are scheduled for Jan. 24, 25 and 26 at the Hotel Emerson.

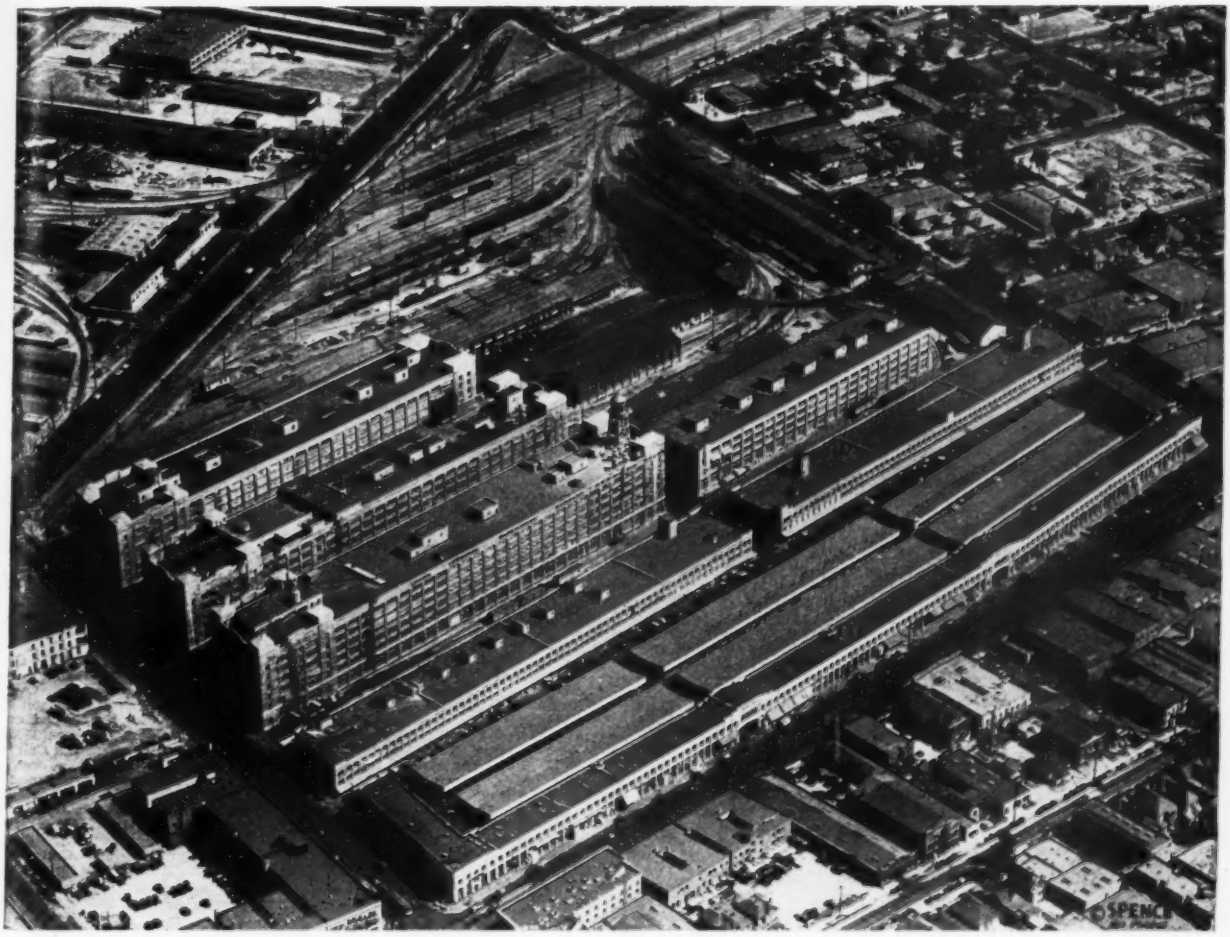

This meeting will be attended by members of the Commission of Interstate Cooperation and the American Legislators' Assn., many governors, attorneys general, members of various legislatures and others. The session is sponsored by the Council of State Governments. Primary purpose will be to draft a master plan for wartime legislation to be taken back to State Legislatures for general adoption.

Among the new laws which the States will be asked to enact will be emergency transportation regulations, and the elimination of various interstate barriers; emergency war power acts; an omnibus measure covering regulations for black outs, mobilization, air raids, military traffic control, emergency health and sanitation and lend-lease of State property.—Ignace.

Needed Equipment Through Information Clearing House

The Midwest Shippers Advisory Board has proposed to its members the creation of an information clearing house, through which parties seeking equipment needed for efficient operations might be able to obtain the desired article from other members who have an unused surplus of the wanted apparatus on hand. An instance of what might be accomplished occurred at Joliet, Ill., recently when the Joliet Warehouse and Transfer Co. had been turned down by the War Production Board on the purchase of only 50 ft. of conveyor costing approximately $150, which was needed in unloading and loading box equipment. C. L. Ackerman, service agent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, happened by chance to learn that the I. N. R. Beatty Lumber Co., of Joliet had some conveyor equipment that was not being used and through Mr. Ackerman's assistance, the Beatty company loaned this to the warehouse company.

In reporting the incident Mr. Ackerman suggested that the same sort of local cooperation might be handled in all parts of the country through the Advisory Boards. Groups of industry representatives could make known what they need, he pointed out, and if the equipment could be exchanged or loaned, a helpful contribution could be made to speeding up both industry and car loading. Ackerman's proposal was passed on to Midwest Board members by F. A. Schleifer, its general chairman, who endorsed the idea as one that might lead to release of cars more promptly.—Slawson.

I.C.C. Prevents Cross Country Rail Increase

The I.C.C. on Dec. 30 suspended on protest of shippers, the O.P.A. and the Dept. of Agriculture, proposed increases on canned goods from the Pacific Coast to Southeastern destinations. The I.C.C. likewise suspended for investigation, proposed cancellation of transit on rail-water through rates from Southwestern interior points via Gulf ports to Atlantic Coast ports. The proposal of the transcontinental railroads was for an increase on canned goods to South Carolina points from $1.11 to $1.20 per 100 lbs., minimum 40,000 lbs., and from 93 cents to $1.08 per 100, minimum 60,000 lbs. Similar increases were proposed to all Southeastern points from all Pacific origins.

War Production Held Up by Surplus Frozen Mdse.

The aircraft industry, according to Tom M. Girdler, chairman of the boards of Consolidated Aircraft Corp., Vultee Aircraft, Inc., and the Republic Steel Corp., is barely operating at 60 per cent of its capacity, because it lacks materials which are lying idle in plants around the country. He had steel particularly in mind. "I think," he stated, "millions of tons of it are lying around in various plants throughout the country waiting to be used. Some of these idle inventories are necessary. But a lot of that steel ought to be at work."

Not only is this frozen steel available to speed up the war production program but an estimated $1,500,000,000 inventory of surplus mechanical and electrical equipment, all of which is lying dormant as a result of curtailment of manufacture of civilian goods.

This idle mechanical and electrical equipment must be released immediately to war plants all of which are vitally in need of same. Those plants that are withholding the release of such equipment are only aiding the enemy and are indirectly responsible for war casualties brought about by the lack of fighting equipment.

Crtically needed are such off-the-market items as:

Electric motors	Pulleys	Pillow blocks
Electric tools	Controllers	Gear reducers
Machinery	Meters	Gas engines
Grinders	V-belts	Compressors
Drills	Cord sets	Shop lights
Paint sprayers	Bearings	Pumps
Switches	Couplings	Gauges
Rheostats	Shafting	Blowers
Fans	Heating equip.	Piece parts
Fan parts	Heaters	Sub-assemblies

The foregoing equipment can be disposed of through the cooperation of the W.P.B. and companies that deal in such equipment. Quite often the full price in cash is paid. Now is the time to liquidate every ounce of surplus merchandise so that it will immediately get into war production channels.

Long Issues a Patriotic Poster

The S. N. Long Warehouse, St. Louis, has mailed out a very impressive Patriotic American Poster which is to be hung in the office as a constant reminder to civilians that the men on the fighting fronts must be backed up at home through conservation of raw materials, the purchase of war savings bonds and stamps, etc. Attached to the poster are specific instructions on insignia and duties of civilian volunteers, air raid instructions, safety measures against gas and incendiary bombs, first aid, and illustrated identification of United and Axis war planes.

The status of the supply of these posters is unknown, but W. F. Long, the company's manager, states that a request for a poster will bring either one itself or information regarding same.

Wine Tank Cars for Petroleum

Wine shippers of California have been directed by the O.D.T. to implement an agreement prepared by O.D.T. and the W.P.B. representatives and members of the wine industry for the joint use of tank cars remaining in the wine traffic. To be released for essential war uses are all of the 289 single-compartment tank cars now engaged in the transportation of wine. These will be diverted to the movement of petroleum, after they are repaired and fitted with safety valves.—Gidlow.

BUFFALO N.Y.

Unsurpassed Warehousing and Distributing Facilities

Located in the shipping and warehousing center of a large and prosperous market covering western New York and Pennsylvania, northern Ohio, and all the Lake and St. Lawrence River ports, including the Canadian. Thus, shippers transacting business within this area are in a position to enjoy many advantages not available elsewhere.

Docks are served directly by Great Lakes Transit Corp. steamers and New York Barge Canal lines, affording transportation economies that materially reduce shipping costs. There are direct track connections with the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central, and reciprocal switching to all other railroads entering the city. Capacity, 50 cars daily, with all loading and unloading under cover. Pool car distribution. Warehouses are also served by all suburban trucking companies.

Buildings are of modern construction and enjoy low insurance rates. Adequate equipment is maintained to assure prompt, safe and efficient handling, and exceptional facilities are provided for the storage and shipping of goods of all kinds, in any quantities. Established 1903. Capital, $900,000.

VENTILATING, HEATING, ETC.

We respectfully invite you to inspect the premises at any time, at your convenience so that you may see for yourself the modern warehouse we are operating.

We call attention to our ultra-modern warehouse at 29-39 Pavonia Ave., Jersey City, N. J. Situated on the Erie R.R. and Hudson River. Send for further details of this warehouse—The Mid-Hudson.

goods; for example, an ADT burglary alarm system or similar protective devices or watchmen service.

Stocks of our products in warehouses are insured by us against fire, sprinkler damage, windstorms, cyclones, tornadoes, etc. In addition, we carry burglary and theft insurance in requisite amounts. Burglary coverage is payable to us by the insurance underwriters only if it can be proved that the warehouse was entered by force,—the proof required being visible marks of entry on the outside of the building.

We are also carrying at the present time war damage insurance on all of the buildings owned by our company, as well as on all stocks stored throughout the United States.

To give you some idea of the part warehousing plays in our distribution scheme, I quote from the Nov. 15th issue of the Journal of Commerce wherein it was reported that our sales for the first 10 mos. of this year were approximately 18 billion cigarettes, or about 1,800 carloads; of which, according to our records, 80 per cent moved through warehouses and only 20 per cent was shipped direct from the factory.

I don't mind telling you that warehousing has eased the burden of distribution under the wartime shipping conditions; but—in peace or in war—remember: "The Nearer to Market, the Nearer to Home."

Here's WARTIME Warehouse Efficiency!

Merchandise Storage—

Right now America's common purpose is WAR! Warehousemen realize the part they must play in winning that war—that a nation without efficient warehousing is a crippled nation. But we are marching together—seeing to it that the utmost efficiency and security go with every transaction. This organization is no new recruit; it is a "regular" in the warehouse army of Victory. Wartime efficiency rules at all times.

Our 150,000 sq.ft. of storage space, fireproof concrete buildings, modern facilities, convenient location in the Akron, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls area are ideally suited for clean, careful storage of your merchandise. Pool cars and spot stock accounts handled with precision and safety. Private siding, B.&O. and Penna. R.R's. Free switching all roads. Low insurance rates.

Household Goods Storage—

The same meticulous care and attention to detail goes into our handling of Household Goods as we give to Merchandise. Firms and traffic managers concerned with the switching of personnel from city to city, requiring fast but careful handling of their long distance moving, storage of furniture, etc., find the Cotter City View Storage Co. as efficient as a top-sergeant.

At 1031 Sweitzer Ave. fire protected buildings are sprinklered and located on the Penna. R.R. At 70 Cherry St., on the B.&O. R.R., buildings have fire and burglar alarms and Aero Automatic.

Join up now—with the Cotter City View Storage Co. for greater efficiency in the handling of your goods. In war or peace, when you can have the utmost, why be satisfied with less? Write today for further information.

Shippers' Aid Needed in Victory Book Campaign

An appeal has gone out to shippers and distributors to make facilities available to the 1943 Victory Book Campaign, the second annual drive to supply books for our fighting forces. Because the readers of DandW are owners and managers of trucks and automobiles, they can play a particularly important role in the campaign, a role which the National Campaign Board has asked the editor of this magazine to stress to the readers. This drive is sponsored by the American Library Assn., the American Red Cross and the USO. Its purpose is to see that readable books, in good physical condition, go speeding on their way to camps, naval bases and USO centers outside the camps—to our soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guardsmen and merchant seamen.

DandW's readers are asked to contribute good books to the campaign—to take same to public libraries. Here they will be sorted and then taken to the central distributing posts. Though many will take them to the libraries, others can deposit them in collection boxes which will be placed in apartment house lobbies, moving picture theatres, stores and other public places.

The duties of shippers and distributors are centered in getting these books from the collection boxes to the libraries and to have their truck drivers pick up as many books as possible during their usual rounds.

Local organizations such as the Boy Scouts, the A.W.V.S. and others are volunteering in the work of book collection in every community. Steering committees will be set up to guide those who wish to cooperate. If no committee has been established, then get in touch with the nearest public library.

In selecting the books to be given away, the only test is to decide whether they proved interesting or not. The boys like recent best sellers, fiction and non-fiction, as well as adventure stories, Westerns, mysteries and humorus books.

Our readers are asked to install a collection box on their own premises.

DEPENDABLE SERVICE WITH SECURITY

We receive annually millions of dollars worth of merchandise from nationally known manufacturers for delivery in Pacific, also Central States and intermediate region.

This company's experience has been more than one-third of a century without a loss to any customer. It is financially responsible and complies with bonded requirements. The organization's personnel includes some who have been active in directing the business from the time of incorporation in 1906.

Employees are under bond, and reliable; also trained to be efficient and conscious of the importance of strict attention to detailed instructions.

Storing spot stocks in a public warehouse is not only a selling stimulator for the trade already established, but economically safer as an experimental venture in new territory than leasing or purchasing a building, because sales-managers are not hampered by problems of operation and maintenance.

Some very large shippers have warehoused and distributed commodities here for over twenty years, due to our competent handling. Of course, smaller accounts are welcome too.

Traffic managers and other executives are cordially invited to communicate with us.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

The Largest City in the State—

The largest City in the Ohio Valley between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati and the gateway to a land of Milk and Honey for manufacturers and producers in which to sell their products. Chamber of Commerce reports 125 diversified industries located in the City. Of the 15 classes of manufacturing outlined by United States Department of Commerce, Huntington has representation of 12 classes.

Most modern locomotive repair shops in the World are located here. Home of International Nickel Co.—only industry of its kind in United States.

West Virginia is first in production of Coal in United States, Huntington is the gateway to 6 large coal fields. C & O RR hauls over 4,000 cars per day, the N & W RR hauls 1,000 cars per day, large fleets of steamboats and barges hauling coal north and south on the Ohio River, which has a 9-ft. year round stage, all this coal comes out of Huntington's back yard. We are informed it will require 200 years to exhaust the supply at the present production.

Largest Chemical Valley in United States is short distance from Huntington and in this and close by territory, Government and private corporations are spending upward of two hundred million dollars in new plants and additions to old plants in operation.

Can you visualize the vast opportunity for your merchandise? Keep it close to your patrons, where they can secure it daily, substitutions are sales lost forever. Five million people can be served out of Huntington over night and you will be surprised how fast storage-in-transit stock can be delivered South—East—West or North.

PERSONALLY—we have been in the warehouse business 22 years, own and operate 5 warehouses. Brick, steel and concrete construction. Combined carrying capacity 75,378,000 pounds, all warehouses served by private sidings from all railroads entering city. Can serve 40 motor trucks simultaneously and have every facility necessary to handle your business entrusted to us—every convenience for your convenience.

We are serving close to a hundred National Firms. If you are not one of our family, let's talk it over. We are sales minded and there is no obligation.

500 Million Dollars Involved in Rail Increases

Cancellation of rail rate increases granted early this year is sought by the O.P.A. in a petition filed with the I.C.C. At stake are an estimated 500 hundred million dollars in yearly transportation costs. The petition asks cancellation on the basis that (1) rail earnings have improved to the point where satisfactory profit positions can be maintained without the aid of the increases and (2) the increases jeopardize the anti-inflation program by imposing unnecessary costs upon the users of railroads and by adding substantially to the cost of the war. At least 50 per cent of the added freight transportation is being paid by the Federal Government.

Refrigerated Warehousing Broke Records

Industry Successful in Meeting Storage Needs Despite Production and Movement of Greatest Volume of Perishable Foods in History. Outlook for 1943 Is Bright.

By J. R. SHOEMAKER

Associate Director in Charge of Refrigerated Warehousing, Division of Storage, Office of Defense Transportation.

THE year just closed has seen the Nation's refrigerated warehousing industry break all earlier records in effort and achievement. Despite the production and movement of the greatest volume of perishable foods in our history, all materials were accommodated in storage every time they paused in their flow from field to consumer.

The advent of war meant much the same thing to the refrigerated warehousing industry that it meant to other industries—dislocations and disruptions, emphasis on new foods and new production and consumption centers, a fluctuating ocean shipping picture which made normal planning of requirements impossible, Lend-Lease programs which increased both the number and complexity of problems to be met. Vastly increased food production was accompanied by a shortage of the tin required for preservation by canning and of materials which might have been used for expansion of storage facilities.

That all essential needs for refrigerated storage space have been met seems to be largely the result of 2 factors. First, and probably most important, warehousemen accepted the unavoidable situation and made the best of it. Second, refrigerated warehouse operators, Government procurement agencies, and the Office of Defense Transportation cooperated to provide space for the foods by which the Nation supports itself and helps feed its allies.

This program has 2 related phases: long-range planning and day-to-day action to meet unforeseen needs. The O.D.T. has conferred with government procurement agencies to plan requirements for storage space as far as a year ahead. Where developments were impossible to foresee, the O.D.T. took quick action to procure space for essential commodities.

The situation in the refrigerated warehousing industry today is easier than was anticipated some months ago. Contributing factors were major changes in Lease-Lend requirements of a few commodities, and a marked improvement in the ocean shipping picture.

In regard to freezer space, a marked falling off of butter holdings eased the situation more than did any other one commodity. The total of 87 million pounds of butter held in cooler space in November was about 138 million pounds less than anticipated and some 99 million pounds less than in the corresponding month last year. The failure of butter holdings to match expectations was due largely to increased Lease-Lend requirements for cheese and dried milk, and to heavy domestic consumption.

For cooler space, the big depresser was cheese, November holdings of which were some 151 million pounds less than anticipated some months ago. A major cause was the improved ocean shipping picture, which permitted rapid withdrawals.

The outlook for the refrigerated warehousing industry is bright. However, no prints of 1943 manpower and ocean shipping pictures can be made till the film has been exposed. Little or no expansion of facilities is possible, but with continued improvement in ocean shipping, it is believed, none will be necessary. Some further conversion from cooler to freezer space probably will be both possible and desirable.

O.D.T. Facilitates Unloading of Refrigerated Cars

The Office of Defense Transportation on Dec. 21 took steps to facilitate the unloading of refrigeration cars engaged in the movement of fresh fruits and vegetables by issuing a General Permit which will allow produce trucks to make more than one delivery a day between freight terminals and wholesale produce markets.

Trucks making such deliveries are also allowed by the permit to operate partially loaded under the order.

All local delivery trucks not specifically excluded by this or other general permits and exemptions are still bound by the provisions of General Order O.D.T. No. 17, which forbids more than one delivery a day from one point of origin to one point of destination. When the load to be delivered exceeds the capacity of the delivering truck, more than one trip may be made, but all trips except the last must be made with the truck loaded to capacity.

The General Order in this regard also allows more than one delivery between a terminal or a market and the "premises of any consignees at one point of destination." Trucks making this type of delivery must, however, carry capacity loads.—Manning.

Cold Storage Holdings

Reports to the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture on perishable food items held in cold storage warehouse and meat packing plants on Dec. 1, 1942, indicated substantial withdrawals during November of manufactured dairy products, eggs, frozen fruits and vegetables and lard. Cold storage holdings of apples, however, were increased during the month by nearly 10 per cent of the Nov. 1 stocks. There was a fairly heavy into-storage movement of poultry and moderate increases in stocks of frozen and cured meats.

Creamery butter holdings totaling 45.6 million pounds were the lowest for Dec. 1 since 1932. Net withdrawals during November were 41.3 million pounds. The net out-of-storage movement of all vari-

Ice-Packed Paperboard Boxes for Fish Containers

The Fish Pier Box Co., recently organized with capital stock of $50,000, is assembling water-tight paperboard boxes as containers for fish as a part of the war effort, producing thousands of boxes daily on Northern avenue, Boston Fish Pier, Boston, Mass. The company is supplying all the dealers on the Pier, many of the Boston retail dealers, all the New Bedford dealers, and is filling orders from Maryland and other States.

The concern was organized with Thomas A. Hartin, of the New England Fish Exchange, as president; E. L. Dunn, president of the New England Fish Exchange, as treasurer, and Henry F. Wood, a Boston lawyer, as secretary and clerk. Joe Tribuna is sales manager.

An automatic locking device is a special feature of the boxes, which are called Tite Top Containers.

These boxes are made in 10-, 20-, and 30-lb. sizes, with no rounded corners, so that space may be saved. When filled with fish, they are placed in wooden containers, with ice around them. The containers are constructed from a laminated waxed material, which protects them from moisture. The concern is supplying also 15-lb. fold-up boxes for fresh fillets and 10- and 15-lb. containers for fresh and frozen fish.

All the containers are received flat from the National Folding Box Co., New Haven, Conn., and assembled by machines at the new plant.

What was regarded as a very severe test was made by one of the large wholesale grocery concerns that shipped 10 of the Tite Top Containers packed with fillets, but floating in brine, to its stores in St. Louis from the Boston warehouse. The report from the St. Louis stores was that the fillets were received in as good condition, if not better, than those shipped in tin containers. Had these fillets been wrapped in "Cellophane" or parchment paper, it is stated that the test would not have been nearly so severe.—Wellington.

Half of Army's Food Kept Under Refrigeration

IN his keynote address opening at the 34th annual Fall meeting of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, Paul S. Willis, president of the group, stated that the American food industry had delivered a total of 6,340,000,000 lbs. of foodstuffs for shipment to our allies in the past year. He stated that this food shipped abroad was almost enough to feed our present army of 4,500,000 men for a year.

Colonel Paul Logan, Subsistence Branch Office of the Quartermaster General, disclosed that the Army is handling about 26,000,000 lbs. of food each day, half of which must be kept under refrigeration. The Army's food bill, he reported, will total $1,100,000,000 this year, and it is purchasing food at the rate of $3,000,000 a day. He also reported that plans are under way to obtain large quantities of dehydrated and quick-frozen foods in addition to canned goods and fresh foods. The 1943 dehydrated program, he stated, calls for 1,000,000,000 lbs. of such foods, a program which will result in saving 106,000 tons of steel. In the quick freezing program, he stated, it will take about 2,000 tons of steel for the installations and by those installations this country will save 8,000 tons of steel this year and each year for as long as the machines last.

The Army has purchased lots of canned sweet potatoes. Speaking in terms of a ship's ton which is 40 cu. ft., he stated, "if we package sweet potatoes in No. 2½ cans, 24 cans to the case and fill up 40 cu. ft., we will find in that 40 cu. ft. about 920 lbs. drained weight—net weight—of potatoes. If we take 5-gal.

cans and stuff them full of dehydrated sweet potatoes, they will reconstitute so that we will get from that 40 cu. ft. 3,980 lbs. of potatoes. The ratio is about 4.7 to 1 in a saving of space."

Colonel Logan then pointed out that some work has been done on compression of foods and dehydrated material so that it can be made into brickettes for saving space. In the item of apple nuggets he stated that the saving by compression is 80 per cent of the space that would be occupied if that were not compressed. In the boneless beef program the Army leaves behind in the packing houses the bones and the surplus fat and the trimmings and the meat is put into a telescope type fiber board box under a little pressure and the saving in space is as 135 to 36. One ton of beef, bone in, solid frozen, will displace 135 cu. ft. of space. That one ton of boneless beef put in these boxes—frozen beef—can be placed in 36 cu. ft. The saving of weight is about 26 to 30 per cent.
